OTTAWA PACTS HIT HARD BLOW AT U. S. TRADE

Preferences Are Given Scores of Canadian Products.

NATION'S GOODS FREE OF DUTY IN BRITAIN

Formula Demanded of England to Deal With Russian Dumping Ready.

Ottawa, Ontario, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—A series of agreements affecting the free flow of trade on every continent, and of vital interest to the United States, was made public today after 30 days of bargaining by delegates to the British Empire economic conference.

United States manufacturers, and dealers in wheat, meats, and hundreds of trade articles ranging from tropical fruits to whale oil from the Arctic regions, are affected by the sweeping agreements signed yesterday in treaties between Great Britain and the individual dominions.

In the British-Canadian agreement, most important to the United States because it gives Great Britain preferential treatment in sending to Canada manufactured articles in which the United States now has a large Canadian market, there is included also the long awaited formula to deal with Russian dumping.

Plan to Raise Prices.

In the British-Australian agreement, which deals with the great meat trade, there is the clear suggestion of a forthcoming plan to raise commodity prices by trying to regulate their export if not their production.

Suggested by Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the British Exchequer, in a speech before a conference committee on monetary problems, the plan is referred to in veiled terms in the Australian treaty. It would be a move of importance to all nations whose raw products have been affected by depressed conditions.

Undertaking to regulate foreign exports of meat to Great Britain, the Australian agreement pledges Australia to limit her 1933 export of frozen mutton and lamb to Britain to the total for the year ended June, 1932.

During the present year, Britain and Australia will consult regarding the best means of insuring an improved price situation and the more orderly marketing of supplies."

Tariff Promises.

Canada gets from Great Britain—as will other dominions in those lines—a promise that parliament will be asked to impose a duty of three pence (six cents at normal) a bushel on wheat, and two pence a pound on copper. Canada's goods will enter Britain duty free. Present 10 per cent duties on foreign timber, fresh sea fish, canned salmon and other canned fish, asbestos, zinc and lead will be continued.

To offer Canada some protection against dumping of Russian wheat, lumber, asbestos, and other products, Britain agreed:

"That if either government is satisfied that any references hereby granted in respect of any particular class of commodities are likely to be frustrated in whole or in part by reason of the creation or maintenance directly or indirectly of prices for such class of commodities through State action on the part of any foreign country, that government hereby declares that it will exercise the powers which it now has or will hereafter take to prohibit the entry from such foreign country, directly or indirectly, of such commodities into its country for such time as

Japanese Defeat Chinese Regulars

Suffer Two Casualties in Three-Hour Battle in Manchuria.

Tokyo (Monday), Aug. 22 (A.P.).—A Japanese detachment stationed east of the Manchurian City of Peipiao clashed with several hundred Chinese regulars from the Province of Jehol and drove them off after three hours of fighting, Japanese newspapers reported today in dispatches from Mukden.

The Japanese suffered two casualties and their adversaries were believed to have lost heavily. The Jeholites were said to have attempted to destroy a railway bridge near Chaoyang Temple Station just inside their borders and attacked a Japanese garrison stationed there for the purpose of freeing Gonshiro Ishimoto, kidnaped Japanese.

Ishimoto, a former army officer, still is a captive of volunteer troops allied with Marshal Chang Hsiao-Liang despite an undertaking by one faction of Jeholites to release him.

Crowds at New York Field Greet Mollison

"England's Lindbergh" Lands Plane at Destination and Immediately Plans Return Flight; "Can't Miss It on East Trip," He Says.

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Tired and a little bewildered by the reception he received, Capt. J. A. Mollison brought his Puss Moth plane to rest here today after successfully negotiating the first solo flight from Europe to New York.

The 27-year-old Scottish aviator, hailed as England's Lindbergh, announced he would take off "very soon" for the return flight to England and his bride of three weeks, Amy Johnson, herself a flier of note.

Although he said he found the westward crossing "very difficult indeed," Mollison declared with firmness there was no possibility whatever that his plans to fly back might be abandoned.

"You can't miss it on the eastward trip," he said. "The weather and winds are much more favorable all the way."

Almost 2,000 persons were at the field when Mollison's silver-gray little plane, the Heart's Content, arrived from Pennfield Ridge, New Brunswick, 600 miles to the northeast, where he came down Friday after crossing the Atlantic.

In landing at Roosevelt Field Mollison ended his pioneering flight at the same spot from which Charles A. Lindbergh started on the first eastward solo crossing five years ago.

Mollison circled the field for five minutes while planes droned a welcome overhead before coming down at the far end of the concrete runways.

Like a fluttering moth, his powerful little plane taxied past the crowded grandstand to the strident blare of automobile horns and the cheers of spectators.

First to reach the "flying gasoline tank," as Mollison's plane has been dubbed, were the two mechanics who will work all night on it to get it back in shape for the return flight.

The sun-burned little aviator, his tousled hair flying in the breeze, was placed atop a limousine and carried up and down the field while hundreds pressed against the wire fence to get a glimpse of him.

"I am naturally glad to be here," he said to the crowd. "It has always been my ambition to visit the United States. I had intended to come down yesterday, but, just between ourselves,

GEORGIAN WINS IN FIRST LEG OF AIRPLANE RACE

Fred Dorset, of Augusta, Leads 28 From Here to Winston-Salem.

START IS WITNESSED BY CROWD OF 40,000

Henry Brown, Washington, Finishes Sixteenth; One of Racers Out.

Fred Dorset, of Augusta, Ga., winging his way southward to Winston-Salem, N. C., yesterday won the first lap of the Eastern wing of the Transcontinental Sweepstakes Air Derby for the Cord Trophy, the start of which was made from Washington-Hoover airport before a holiday throng of 40,000.

Flying the second slowest plane of the 28 entrants, Dorset set the wheels of the little ship down at 5:41 p. m., 2 hours and 36 minutes after the take-off from here.

Five minutes later, Melville Robinson, of Mount Clemens, Mich., landed to win second place.

Robinson was a last-minute entry, taking the place of Lee Gelbach, Mount Clemens, Mich., who withdrew as a derby pilot to fly the racing plane of Russell Boardman, injured last week.

Capital Flier, Sixteenth.

Henry Brown, assistant operations manager of the Ludington Airlines and favored Capital entrant, finished sixteenth. E. W. Stitt, the only other Washington pilot, finished twenty-sixth, completely out of the scoring.

Following Robinson, seven other entries brought their planes down separated only by a few seconds. They were, in order: S. C. Huffman, Cincinnati; Helen McCloskey, Pittsburgh; Harold Newman, Moline, Ill.; C. L. Clabaugh, Glenview, Ill.; Chappy Lenox, New Haven, Conn.; Arthur J. Davis, Lansing, Mich., and R. A. Moore, Dayton, Ohio.

Fastest Plane Far Back.

One of the entrants was declared out of the race last night by officials, according to the Associated Press. He was Cecil Coffrin, Brooklyn, N. Y., who was reported down at Fredericksburg, Va.

Jack Morris, of Pittsburgh, flying the fastest rated plane in the race, finished twenty-fourth after being forced down at Chatham, Va., with motor trouble.

The fliers after the first nine landed in the following order: W. F. Cumings, Donaldsonville, Ga.; Dudley Reed, Fairmont, W. Va.; C. J. Fenton, Toledo, Ohio; Doug Davis, Atlanta; J. E. Herndon, Kansas City; Harvey Hughes, Lansing, Mich.; Henry C. Brown, Washington; Helen Richey, Pittsburgh; J. H. Hays, Ponca City, Okla.; J. F. Tuohy, jr., Olean, N. DOUBLE ATTACK ON ROOSEVELT'S ADDRESS MADE

Hit by G. O. P. for Not Instituting Stocks Reform He Urges.

STATE DEPARTMENT DENIES BOND SALE AID

Snell Cites Bank of U. S. Failure in Bitter Reply to Opening Speech.

(Associated Press.)

The State Department and the Republican national committee struck back quickly yesterday at Gov. Roosevelt's opening campaign address of Saturday at Columbus.

The national committee issued a statement by Representative Snell, of New York, House Republican leader, inquiring why the New York Governor has not instituted in his State the reforms he urged for regulation of the stock exchange and greater control and supervision of banks and security issues.

The State Department replied to the Democratic presidential nominee's reference to foreign bond sales with the assertion that the department "has never approved a single foreign loan."

Snell said Gov. Roostvelt "had many of his facts wrong;" employed "unfair use of spoken words;" and showed "a congenital inability to think clearly."

No Legal Barriers.

"The amazing fact is," Snell said, "that all these reforms could have been initiated by the Governor of the State of New York any time during the last four years, and that the governor should know that there is no constitutional basis for Federal Government regulation of the stock exchange or the issuance of securities by business concerns.

"The principal stock exchange of the country is in New York. It is much more amenable to State regulation than to national. There are no legal barriers to State regulation. • • •

"As to the issuance of securities, New York City is the great security market of the country. • • • If Gov. Roosevelt really wants to stem the flow of unsold securities and control banking commissions, could there be a more effective place to apply his theories than at the source?

Cites Failure of Bank.

"If his program be sound, if it would cure the economic ills of the Nation, why has the Governor of New York, a State so situated as to be able to institute and carry them through with surer authority and greater effectiveness than the Federal Government, remained silent and inert until today, when he speaks not as an executive clothed with power, but as an eager seeker for a higher office?"

"Has the governor forgotten," Snell asked, "that one of the most evil-smelling bank failures in the United States took place in New York City, a failure followed by indictment and conviction? Does he promise the country the kind of supervision that preceded the failure of The Bank of the United States, a State institution supervised by the State Banking Department?"

The State Department quoted Roosevelt as saying at Columbus that

Farm Strike Spread Due in West Today

Omaha and More Iowa Cities Targets of Food Blockade.

Dunlap, Iowa, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Plans for picketing Iowa roads leading into Council Bluffs, Iowa, and Omaha, Nebr., were completed today at a meeting of approximately 1,000 farmers and their families. Leaders announced highways will be blockaded late tomorrow to prevent marketing of farm produce.

Agreement to barricade highways and use "moral persuasion" to keep Iowa farm products off the market until growers are assured the cost of production plus a reasonable profit followed by one week the placing of similar pickets on roads leading into Sioux City, Iowa, from three States. Sioux City picketers maintained their tight lines during the day.

Clinton R. Savery, of Logan, Iowa, Farmers Holiday Association organizer, who called the meeting here, was cheered as he unfolded plans to blockade roads leading to the big Omaha market from the East.

Volunteer picketers were scheduled to meet at 2 p. m., tomorrow at Missouri Valley, Iowa, to begin their vigil, but there were indications following the meeting that 200 volunteers might post themselves there tonight to head off a heavy Monday run of live stock to the Omaha market. The men were to work in twelve-hour shifts.

Savery promised from a platform in the city park no violence would be used in seeing that laden trucks are barred from entering Council Bluffs. He warned all, however, that the blockade would be impassable.

"Let no trucks pass, regardless of the amount of moral persuasion which it is necessary to use," he ordered.

Savery is acting as leader of the Farm Strike Blockade Dams Flow of Liquor

Sioux City, Ia., Aug. 21 (A.P.). Bootleggers are having their own troubles because of the blockade of highways into Sioux City by the farm strikers.

Reports here said that most of the booze runners have suspended operations because of the pickets and also the presence of a large force of deputy sheriffs along the roads.

One runner, however, reported stopped by the farm pickets who asked what he was hauling, replied: "I've got a load of booze."

After verifying his statement, the line reportedly was opened for him to continue on his trip.

GOV. ROOSEVELT DEFENDS POWER IN WALKER CASE

Brief Filed, Challenging Right to Stop Him From Acting.

IS ANSWER TO PLEA TO CEASE HEARING

Mayor Leaves for Albany as Several Friends Shout "Good Luck."

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt has formally notified the courts of the State that they have no power to stop him from hearing and acting on the demands for removal from office of Mayor Walker of New York.

A brief filed with the Supreme Court by the attorney general's office, representing Mr. Roosevelt in the double attempt of Walker and a Bronx County man to halt the proceedings, definitely challenged the right of Supreme Court Justice Ellis J. Staley to stop the governor from acting on the charges.

The brief was made public tonight by Deputy Attorney General Henry Epstein, representative of Mr. Roosevelt.

Held Without Jurisdiction.

It said:

"It is the unqualified position of the Governor of the State of New York that the court has no jurisdiction over the person of the governor in the exercise of his official duties, and, furthermore, no jurisdiction over the performance of an executive act, which is the subject matter of the instant proceeding (the application for an order of prohibition to stop Roosevelt from continuing action in the case).

"If we perversely or corruptly do an intentional wrong, the constitution has provided the only remedy, which is impeachment."

The argument was prepared for submission to Justice Staley tomorrow morning when the jurist resumes his hearing of the applications of John J. Curtin, of counsel for Walker, and Sidney S. Levine, counsel for George Donnelly, of the Bronx Chamber of Commerce. It was designed not only to answer Levine's plea on Friday for an order of prohibition but to meet with some degree the expected similar application of Curtin.

Rests Case on Two Points.

Mr. Epstein, who prepared his brief after a long conference with the governor, rested his case on only two points, the challenging of the right of the courts to act and the assertion that the removal proceedings undertaken by Mr. Roosevelt were entirely legal, in conformance with the State constitution and a section of the greater New York charter, which provides for removal of a mayor of the city by the governor.

New York, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Mayor James J. Walker left late this afternoon for Albany and the resumption of his removal hearing before Gov. Roosevelt.

It had been announced the mayor would take an earlier train with other members of his party, so there were no crowds on hand when he finally arrived at the Grand Central terminal.

Several persons recognized him, however, and shouted "good luck." Walker paused to pat some children on the head.

LABOR DEPARTMENT REPORTS TRADE RISE

Employment Increase Seen as Not Entirely of Temporary Character.

(Associated Press.)

A definite upturn in business in July was reported yesterday by the Labor Department.

It noted, furthermore, "Strong indications that this upward trend in employment was not entirley of a temporary character."

"Reports of the United States Employment Service reveal that July witnessed the first really noticeable expansion in industrial activity that has occured so far this year," said the department's industrial employment information bulletin.

"Conditions in the boot and shoe industry generally improved. Quite a number of these factories increased operations to a full-time basis, recalling many workers who had been idle for some time past.

"A decided upward trend occurred in the textile industry, especially noticeable in the mills manufacturing woolens and worsted goods, rayon and silk products and hosiery, where thousands of men and women were reemployed.

"Very little change occurred in the volume of employment in the iron and steel mills and operating schedules remained far below normal; however, slight increases were noted in a few districts.

"Part-time schedules were reported as general in the automobile factories.

"The upturn in coal mining in a number of the anthracite fields re-

ENDURANCE FLIERS FINISH WEEK IN AIR

Two Women Say They Plan to Hang Up "Real" Mark; Ask for Magazines.

Curtis Field, N. Y., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Two young women who had been flying for a week were still not satified with their endurance record today. They took on a tankful of gasoline, a fresh supply of hairpins and kept right on flying.

Mrs. Frances Marsalis and Mrs. Louise Thaden completed their seventh day in the air at 1 p. m. and sent down a message they had no intention of coming down for a few days. "We are going to hang up a real record while we are at it," they wrote.

The fliers surpassed the previous women's record of 123 hours, set by Edna May Cooper and Evelyn Trout, late Friday.

Mrs. Marsalis and Mrs. Thaden reported they both had a good night's sleep last night, and fliers in their contact plane said they appeared refreshed and in good spirits. Thousands of persons visited the field today to watch the new champions perform.

Late in the afternoon the young women asked for magazines.

Heart Attack Kills Capital Swimmer

Printing Bureau Employe Dies in Chesapeake Bay at North Beach.

A heart attack while swimming in Chesapeake Bay at North Beach, Md., yesterday cost the life of William J. Casey, 44, an employe of the Bureau of Printing and Engraving. Casey was swimming in view of scores of bathers when he suddenly collapsed in the water. He died almost instantly. With his wife and three children, Casey was visiting at the summer home of his brother-in-law, John J. Shanley.

Shortly before dinner he told members of his family that he was going to take a quick swim before eating. He departed alone. The first news of the tragedy to reach the family was brought by life guards. Dr. Grafton Bailey, a friend of the Caseys, who was also visiting nearby, pronounced Casey dead from natural causes. Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Catherine Casey; two daughters, Frances, 19, and Catherine 18, and a son, John, 16. The body was brought to the Hanlon funeral home here. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Treasure Ship of Furs Is Located Near Alaska

Dutch Harbor, Alaska, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—The steamer Baychimo—"Flying Dutchman" of the Arctic Sea—has been sighted, solidly lodged in ice, 7 miles west of Point Barrow, word received here late today said.

The Baychimo is a floating treasure-trove of furs. She was abandoned more than a year ago with an estimated $1,000,000 of furs aboard. Nineteen men today left Point Barrow with sleds and light native boats made of skin, hoping to retrieve part of the cargo, it was reported. They faced a hazardous trip over mountainous peaks of ice, stretches of open water, and grinding floes.

2 STABBED BODIES FOUND INSIDE BAGS

Men Identified as "Loft Robbers;" Pigeon Fancier Makes Discovery.

Harrison, N. J., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—The bodies of two men, later identified from fingerprints as gangsters and petty racketeers, were found wrapped in burlap bags and covered with an old rug ... the industrial section of Harrison today. The men had been stabbed to death with a pointed weapon, presumably an icepick.

The discovery of the bodies was made by Peter Wozniak, who keeps a pigeon loft on the roof of a small outhouse near his home. When he went to feed the pigeons this morning he discovered the bundle and on closer inspection saw a human hand protruding. He called the police and the bodies were sent to a local morgue.

The identifications were made by the New York police. The men were Andrew Fadrizio, 26, and Vincent Boccio, alias Joseph di Maio, 26, both of Brooklyn. Both had police records.

Harrison police said tonight they learned the men had specialized in loft robberies. After the robberies the men would customarily return to the owner of the loft and bargain for the return of the stolen property at 10 per cent of its cost. Then they would also offer "protection" against future robberies.

Mrs. McCormick Shows Slight Improvement

Chicago, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—A peaceful night's rest and a will which carried her through a severe sinking spell left Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick seemingly stronger today.

A bulletin released by the society leader's physicians said she had enjoyed a stimulating rest following a half-hour sinking period last night. The physicians described her mind as clear and bright today, but in order to conserve her strength they refused her permission to sit up in bed as she had done Saturday.

Theories in Death Of Priest Studied

Second Autopsy Performed on Body of Teacher Found in Rectory.

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Theories of suicide and murder or of a double suicide in the deaths of the Rev. Joseph P. Cournoyer and Miss Lavinia Moran, an active worker in his Catholic parish, were weighed by investigating officials today against the possibility they died from natural causes.

Medical Examiner M. M. Scarbrough is expected to submit to Coroner James J. Corrigan tomorrow the results of a second autopsy on the body of the 39-year-old school teacher, found partly clad in a bedroom of St. Louis' rectory.

Father Cournoyer was killed by carbon monoxide poisoning Wednesday night in his closed garage about the time Miss Moran died. Their bodies were not discovered until late Friday.

The coroner said an analysis of the contents of Miss Moran's internal organs was being made to learn whether they contained poison, but he explained this was part of the routine examination after any mysterious death.

DUNCAN TRIAL JURY TO BE CHOSEN TODAY

Speedy Action Indicated in Case of Former Arlington County Clerk.

With the selection today of a jury in Arlington County Circuit Court to hear the case of former County Clerk William H. Duncan, indicted on charges of misuse and appropriation of public funds, a speedy trial is expected. It was indicated by counsel yesterday that, while the Ball trial lasted five days, it is not anticipated the trial of Duncan will take so long.

Although Duncan is accused of a shortage of $85,618.70 in public funds, he goes on trial on an indictment charging misuse of $7,815 of State funds. This amount, it is alleged, had been turned over to him by the State highway department in a land condemnation proceding.

T. Colman Andrews, State auditor, and Collins Denny, jr., assistant attorney general of the State, who returned to their homes in Richmond upon the completion of Ball's trial Friday night, came to Arlington County last night. Mr. Denny will assist Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas in the prosecution.

Duncan will be defended by Attorney Amos C. Crounse, of Arlington County, and Leo P. Marlow, of Alexandria and Washington.

Body of Mountain Victim Recovered

Koven's Remains Found 11,000 Feet Up Glacier in Alaska.

Fairbanks, Alaska, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—A searching party has found the body of Theodore Koven, who was killed with Allen Carpe on a scientific expedition on the slopes of Mount McKinley three months ago, and are returning with it to McKinley Park.

The searchers, Merele Lavoy and Andrew Taylor, reported Koven's body was located on the ice at an elevation of 11,000 feet up Mildrow Glacier, where he died of injuries and exposure after falling into a crevasse. The body of Carpe, who had apparently fallen into a crevasse, was not located.

The disastrous end of the expedition which was studying cosmic rays, was discovered by another mountain-climbing expedition. Lavoy and Taylor came here from New Jersey to make the search for Koven's mother, who lives in Jersey City, N. J.

Morsky told police that after driving about with the men for several hours he suggested they take him back to the hotel and promised to give them $25 for his watch. They agreed, but as they approached the hotel they saw a police automobile and stopped, giving Morsky an opportunity to jump from their car and run.

ROOSEVELT PLANS 6 MORE MAJOR TALKS

Nominee Enjoys Brief Rest Following First Big Campaign Speech.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Gov. Roosevelt today enjoyed a letdown from the demands of State office and the requirements of his presidential candidacy, which have used up most of his time for the past ten days ending with the week-end trip to Columbus for the first of his campaign trips.

Tomorrow he resumes the hearing of ouster charges against Mayor James J. Walker of New York City. Tonight, however, he was not called upon to go over his part in the next day's proceedings as was necessary when he was questioning Walker and other witnesses summoned by the governor. Tomorrow is the mayor's "day in court" when he presents his own witnesses.

The governor returned to Albany today satisfied with the way his address on economic conditions was received by the Columbus crowd that heard and saw him and the radio audience that only heard him. Many telegraphic comments on the speech have been received at the executive mansion. Mr. Roosevelt looked over many of them today, and some of them, he said, were not commendatory. Most of them were, he added.

Norman Davis Is Guest.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Davis were luncheon guests at the mansion. Davis, an Undersecretary of State in the Woodrow Wilson administration, is a student of foreign affairs. Davis was an adviser on foreign affairs to Alfred E. Smith when he was the Democratic presidential candidate in 1928.

Mr. Davis was a delegate to the last disarmament conference at Geneva. He told Mr. Roosevelt, it was understood, that he was hopeful the meeting in Switzerland might lead to some definite steps toward the purpose for which it was held.

It was reported in circles close to Mr. Roosevelt that he had in mind about six more major addresses. One of them, to be delivered at Topeka, Kans., on September 14, will be devoted to the farm question. Another will be devoted to foreign affairs and a third to prohibition. The other topics have not been determined.

There will be many lesser speeches. The acceptance and Columbus addresses were major speeches.

Another Catch Phrase.

The governor's aids said they believed he had coined another economic catch phrase at the Columbus meeting to go with the "forgotten man" slogan, enunciated last April. It was "industrial cannon fodder."

He said: "I do not believe that in the name of the sacred word "individualism" a few powerful interests should be permitted to make industrial cannon fodder of the lives of half the population of the United States."

The Walker hearing is likely to take most of Mr. Roosevelt's time this week. He will leave on Friday night, however, if it is still in progress, for his next speech at Sea Girt, N. J., on August 27. Friday night he will go down to New York City. After the Sea Girt rally he will go out on Long Island to spend Saturday night with his former law partner, Basil O'Connor.

Roosevelt's Talk for First Grade Minds, Says Moses

Senator Says Candidate Shows Familiarity With "Mother Goose;" Dubs 9 Points as Neo-Bryanism; Views Called Old Stuff Under Spurious Labels.

New York, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—United States Senator George H. Moses, of New Hampshire, said today that Gov. Roosevelt's Columbus speech was "couched in terms of an intelligence of the first grade of the public schools," and that "even a spurious label bearing a Roosevelt name can not make it palatable."

Senator Moses' statement, issued at the Eastern headquarters of the Republican national committee, was as follows:

"'The future is ours to conquer,' Gov. Roosevelt exclaimed at Columbus on Saturday. He means, of course, the future which is represented by the boys and girls who will vote in the election of 1948. At any rate, his remarks were all couched in terms of an intelligence of the first grade of the public schools.

"The governor shows familiarity with Lewis Carroll and Mother Goose. There is another book which he might read with profit—the Bible. In it he will find a striking character who said, 'When I was a child I thought as a child—but when I became a man I put away childish things.'

"The Presidency is a man's job. Gov. Roosevelt evidently looks upon it as a combination of the nursery and Coin's financial school; and the nine points of salvation which he enumerates are only a neo-Bryanism. He evidently thinks the country is to be saved by compelling every bond salesman to tell what his commission is.

"Gov. Roosevelt's speech of acceptance was made up, as he has explained, of paragraphs which he lifted from old speeches as he flew from Albany to the convention hall. In other words, he opened nothing but canned goods for the delectation of his delegates. He continues to ladle out old stuff. But even a spurious label bearing a Roosevelt name can not make it palatable."

G.O.P. TO BASE DRIVE ON ECONOMIC ISSUES

Keep Tried Pilot at Helm, Says Tilson in Listing Main Talking Points.

New York, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Economic issues and President Hoover's "record of legislative achievements" were listed tonight by Representative John Q. Tilson as the main Republican talking points in the presidential campaign.

As chairman of the Eastern speakers' bureau, Mr. Tilson outlined the issues to be stressed by the orators he will send into the twelve Northwestern States during the next two months.

"Perhaps the one great issue of the campaign," he said, in a statement given out at Republican Eastern headquarters, "may be said to rest on the question of whether we want the benefit of the experience of such leadership (as President Hoover's) or whether we want to experiment upon an untried sea with an unknown pilot at the helm."

Acceptance Speech to Be Used.

He said the Republican speakers will draw their ammunition from the President's acceptance speech.

"The main issue will be fought out on economic lines," he continued.

"Perhaps of equal importance is the character and the record of legislative achievements of the President himself, and the need at this time of letting him finish the job he has started so well.

"As Republicans we are fortunate in that our opponents have sought to bring up for public consideration the record of President Hoover.

"Nothing could please us better."

Human Side Is Cited.

The principal attack thus far on the record of the Hoover administration was made yesterday by Gov. Roosevelt at Columbus, Ohio, in the first speech of his road campaign for the Presidency.

"At this critical hour," said Mr. Tilson, "let us not forget our economic recovery is dependent upon those proposals laid down by President Hoover, and which are now in operation. * * *

"The human side of this great leader was clearly revealed to all those who listened to him when he declared that if the country wished it he stood ready to make still further sacrifices to lead us, as he hoped, out of the great crisis through which we are now passing.

"His record is unblemished. His promise can be relied upon. Is there any one in whom we could place greater confidence for the future? I doubt it."

THOMAS QUESTIONS ROOSEVELT RECORD

"World Headed for Hell or Worse," He Says, Unless Socialism Is Adopted.

Providence, R. I., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Norman Thomas, Socialist nominee for President, addressing a rally of Rhode Island members of the party, today assailed the remarks of Franklin D. Roosevelt in Columbus, Ohio, yesterday, gave six questions for the Democratic nominee to answer, and asserted that unless socialistic principles are adopted the world is "headed for hell or something worse."

Thomas declared Roosevelt, in his Columbus speech, pursued his policy of "running as a radical in the West and as a safe and sane friend of good business in the East."

Three of the six questions directed at Roosevelt pertained to the Wall street boom and subsequent collapse in 1929. Thomas asked Roosevelt when he or his party officially had called on the administration to check the Wall street boom and what specifically he advised the administration to do. He also asked Roosevelt whether he shared "the pride of certain of your national committeemen that the mere fact of your nomination was responsible for the present tender boom on Wall street, which has been accompanied by a new drop in the index of business activity?"

Puts Pertinent Question.

"What did you do as Governor of New York after January 21, 1929, to bring Wall street to terms?" was one of Thomas' questions.

The Socialist nominee also asked: "Specifically, Gov. Roosevelt, why did you not push the recommendation of Robert Moses, Moreland act investigator, in the City Trust Bank (New York) failure in time to save or help to save the bank of United States? This is not a local matter, in view of your sharp criticism of the Hoover policy toward banking."

In the final question, Thomas asked the Democratic nominee why "you have such faith in regulation of corporations in view of the unsatisfactory nature of all attempts at regulating these big corporations and especially in view of the fact that during your own administration the power trust in New York City has got away with a scheme of service charges, which in these bad times compels some 60 per cent of domestic users of electricity in New York City to pay more than they paid before."

"Words and Phrases."

Socialist answers to all these questions. Mr. Thomas declared, are clear and concrete and he added that if Mr. Roosevelt does not "wish to run merely on words and phrases" he should be "more specific in what he is saying."

He said: "I agree with most of the things Roosevelt says about President Hoover except that they are not bad enough and that they sound funny from the lips of a Democrat. Jimmy Walker didn't cry for regulation of Wall street when the boom was on, did he? Roosevelt is shocked because the big corporations own so much. But what is he going to do about it?

"You can't take the Democratic party away from Wall street—Wall street has bought and paid for it, as it has the Republican party.

"The world is bound for hell or somewhere worse unless socialistic principles can be put to work. The only way out is socialism—an international socialism, cooperative, federated commonwealth of the world."

TWIN ATTACK SENT AGAINST ROOSEVELT

if he were elected "it will no longer be possible for international bankers or others to sell to the investing public of America foreign securities on the implied understanding that these securities have been passed on or approved by the State Department or any other agency of the Federal Government."

"This is an insinuation,' the statement said, "that the department has thus assisted the bankers in the past. It would be interesting to know whether Mr. Roosevelt intends to revive this long since discredited story and whether he will assert that the department has actually ...us assisted the bankers. The facts have repeatedly been stated. The Department of State has never approved a single foreign loan."

Snell, in his 1,100-word statement, said Gov. Roosevelt "sought to make the President responsible for the mad speculation long under way before his administration began and for a depression that started three months after."

Transfer of Exchange "Absurd."

In asserting that the New York Stock Exchange is more readily subject to State regulation than Federal, Snell said "the governor's feeble alibi that rather than to submit to reasonable regulation the New York Stock Exchange would move from one State to another borders on the absurd."

Saying Gov. Roosevelt "would compel the separation of commercial and investment banking," Snell remarked:

"For all the years the governor has been in Albany, the State government has had complete authority to bring about this reform in its own banking system and in the financial and banking center of the Nation. * * * In his position and with his views, why, in the name of common sense, has he done nothing at all about it in four years? * * *

"The truth is that the Federal Government has been of immense assistance to the bank depositors of the country, including those in New York State. The protection afforded the 15,000,000 depositors in banks that have received help from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is a cold fact which the governor chooses to ignore."

Statesmanship Declared Absent in Ohio Speech

Carmel, Calif., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Mark L. Requa, Republican national committeeman for California, today said the speech of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt at Columbus, Ohio, yesterday, lacked "any evidence of statesmanship or any profound comprehension of the problems confronting the Nation."

"History will probably say that the Democratic campaign collapsed on Saturday, August 20, with the Columbus speech of the candidate," Requa asserted.

Warsaw, Poland, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago arriving here from Czechoslovakia, granted an interview today in which he expressed the opinion that American prohibition could not last and the hope that visitors to the World's Fair in Chicago in 1933 would be able to enjoy beer.

3 Children Dead Of Food Poisoning

Four Other Members of Family in Louisville Critically Ill.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Three children died here today and four other members of their family were made critically ill from what health authorities termed food poisoning. The dead—Kenneth Callahan, 15 months old; his sisters, Cecilia, 8, and Virginia, 6.

Those ill are the parents, John C. Callahan, 43, and Mrs. Callahan, 39, and two other children, Dorothy, 4, and George, 15. Four other children who did not partake of the food, served at breakfast, were not affected.

Authorities were told the victims became violently ill shortly after the meal, which consisted of bread made from cornmeal and flour and wild cherry preserves. Dr. Desha Harris, assistant director of health, said it was believed the bread caused the poisoning.

First R. F. C. Loan Report Due Today

Hoover Not to Interfere With Baring of Figures by Trimble.

(Associated Press.)

Loans made by the Reconstruction Corporation between July 21 and August 1 will be made public today by South Trimble, clerk of the House, and the effect of the publicity is awaited here with keen interest.

President Hoover has indicated that he will not interfere and is understood to feel that it could not be determined whether harm would result until after the loans are made public. Mr. Trimble announced last Thursday his decision to make public the first monthly report on the corporation's activities under the relief act and plans to carry it out today at about 10 o'clock.

It is understood there were few loans made during the ten-day period after President Hoover signed the bill on July 21. Rumors that court action might be instituted to prevent the making of the loans public have died down.

HOOVER ENJOYS DAY OF REST AT RAPIDAN

Skyland, Va., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—A day of almost complete rest, with a picnic lunch on a grassy spot near one of the Rapidan Camp's waterfalls, was enjoyed by President Hoover today at his Blue Ridge Mountain retreat.

When newspapers were dropped by airplane, Mr. Hoover read the Columbus (Ohio) address of his Democratic opponent, Gov. Roosevelt of New York. The President was out for a walk yesterday when the speech was delivered, and heard only the high spots of it from guests, who had listened by radio.

It was learned that the Chief Executive today scanned Mr. Roosevelt's words at some length before running through his mail.

Mr. Hoover made known late in the day that he planned to return to the White House tomorrow morning, arising shortly after sun up in order to reach his desk at an early hour.

Some of the camp's guests preceded him to the Capital. Acting Secretary Castle of the State Department went down the mountain for a brief stop at Hot Springs, Va., before returning to Washington, probably by Tuesday. Robert Lincoln O'Brien, chairman of the Tariff Commission, also left the camp during the afternoon.

According to police, Smith and an unidentified companion, who escaped, were spotted on the Defense highway near Lanham, Md., by Prince Georges County Policeman Claude Cubbage, who gave chase when he became suspicious. The pair successfully eluded their pursuer until the District Line was reached, when a rear tire blew out. Smith leaped from the car into the waiting arms of Policeman Luther C. Wise. Search of the car resulted in seizure of six cases of alleged liquor.

Upon request from a "Mr. Urene," Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney recently ordered detectives to keep a close watch on the apartment house and loiterers in its vicinity. Duran was arrested when a patrolman saw him stoop into the shadows behind the apartment house door and pick up the revolvers.

Essex, Mass., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—The Democratic party's prohibition plank was assailed today by former Representative James H. MacLafferty, of California, as "an attempt to fool wet Republicans into the belief that the Democratic party is wet and that the Republican party is dry."

MacLafferty, speaking at the annual outing of the Franco-American Civic League of Massachusetts, charged the Democrats with "nothing short of a bold fraud."

New York, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—Miss Dorothy Mayhew, of Brooklyn, trying to get a number in a Grand Central Terminal telephone booth, heard a terrific squawking. Denver, Colo., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—The Denver & Rio Grande Western Railroad has notified the State Public Utilities Commission it will give its 39-mile branch between Saperino and Lake City, Colo., to anyone who will operate it and pay the taxes.

Or, the road will lease the branch for $180 a year and throw in free use of a locomotive and coach.

In the 90s the branch was one of the thriving feeder lines of the Rio Grande system. With the decline of mining in the section, the road has become such a burden that the company is willing to give it away to stop the expense of taxes and operation.

CURTIS, BACK, EAGER TO PUSH CAMPAIGN

Will Make Early Report to Hoover on Encouraging Observations.

(Associated Press.)

Confident and eager to go on the campaign hustings again, Vice President Curtis returned yesterday to the Capital.

He will make an early report to President Hoover on observations of his month's cross-continent trip, which took him to the opening of the Olympic games in Los Angeles and to his formal notification ceremony at Topeka, Kans. In accepting renomination he declared his personal opposition to repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

"Crops look wonderful," Curtis said, "and there is a better feeling among the people. I am greatly gratified at the reception to my notification address."

Speaking engagements for the Vice President have not been announced. He has placed himself at the will of the national headquarters.

At the age of 68, the Vice President in 1928 campaigned from one end of the country to the other. At 72 he said yesterday he was ready and eager to go on the stump again as soon as he has cleared his desk of pending business.

Mrs. Dolly Gann, sister and official hostess of the Vice President, returned with him from Topeka. She, too, was enthusiastic over conditions observed at home.

San Francisco, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Five thousand dollars' worth of $113,000 in American Superpower Corporation stock stolen in New York in July, 1929, has been traced to San Francisco, it was announced by the police here tonight.

The stock, authorities said, was purchased by the Bank of America, June 11, from John F. Sullivan, mining man and politician. Both the bank and Sullivan, police said, were innocent of any knowledge the stock had been stolen.

Investigation, it was announced, will continue in an effort to trace the stock, which Sullivan's brother, Patrick Sullivan, San Francisco hotel proprietor, told police his brother received in a business transaction.

MUSICIANS PROTEST USE OF MARINE BAND

Secretary Adams Assailed for Detailing Group to Hoover Acceptance.

A bitter protest to Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams for permitting the United States Marine Band to play at President Hoover's acceptance speech meeting at the D. A. R. Hall last week was issued yesterday by the American Federation of Musicians.

The protest, sent by Joseph N. Weber, president of the federation, charges Secretary Adams with subjecting the Marine Band to "lawless, political, prostituted use at the request of the Republican national committee."

Reasons for the protest included complaints that the occasion was in no sense a federal official occasion; it was sponsored by the Republican national committee; its central figure was the nominee of the Republican party; the meeting took place in a private and not a Government building, and Mr. Hoover was there not as President of the United States, but as the nominee of a political party.

Secretary Adams is informed in the letter that in issuing orders for the band to play he was violating Section 35 of the national defense act providing that no member of the Army, Navy or Marine Corps shall deprive local civilians from employment. In this connection, the protest charges civilian musicians were denied employment at a time when 90,000 members of the federation are unemployed.

"But you continued your cruel course, adding to the already abject misery of the army of unemployed musicians and their wives and children," the letter asserts.

An inquest will be held tomorrow in an effort to learn the circumstances that led to the slaying of "Doc" Frank Tuthill, whose body was found slumped over the wheel of his automobile on a lonely Long Island road yesterday. Tuthill, who had been in the habit of carrying thousands of dollars on his person, disappeared on August 6 after casually remarking he had an appointment to meet a woman.

LABOR DEPARTMENT REPORTS TRADE RISE

sulted in the return to work of several thousand miners, but this improvement was not reflected in the bituminous areas where large surpluses of these miners were noted.

"Metalliferous mining remained far below normal, except that of gold, which showed some increase in production and employment.

"Work was started on many new highway contracts, which with the projects already under way provided employment for large numbers of men. The expansion in road construction resulted in increased activities in the stone quarries and cement mills, where additional workers were also engaged.

"Harvesting in the agricultural areas was in full swing and thousands of men and women were engaged during the month.

"While seasonal influences were partly responsible for the increase of forces reported in several of the major manufactories of the country, there were also strong indications that this upward trend in employment was not entirely of a temporary character. A more optimistic feeling prevailed with the outlook for August considered encouraging."

RUSSELL AND CRISP IN HOT SENATE RACE

Outcome Is Much in Doubt; Eight Georgians Are Out to Be Governor.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 21 (U.P.).—For ripsnorting politics of the knock-down and drag-out variety, the State of Georgia this year probably has far outdistanced any other State in the Union.

They are going at it without gloves—two candidates for the United States and eight for governor—and what they have said about each other is plenty, as they say in the Georgia backlands.

So much in earnest about it they are that a mere matter of losing four front teeth in an auto wreck en route to a speech meant nothing to the State's boy governor, Richard B. Russell, jr., who went right up there and made that speech regardless.

The Georgia race is featured by the fight between Russell and Representative Charles R. Crisp, acting chairman of the powerful ways and means committee of the House, for the senatorial seat held by the late William J. Harris. It is a David and Goliath sort of an affair, with the outcome very much in doubt.

Eight Out For Governor.

In the gubernatorial lists eight men are making the welkin ring with charges, counter-charges, assertions and denials in an effort to win the chair vacated by Russell in his effort to wrest from the veteran Crisp the junior senatorship for Georgia. If Russell suceeds, he will have gone from speaker of the Georgia House to governor to the United States Senate in two years.

The bitterness of the Crisp-Russell fight is outstanding, although there is plenty of dynamite in the gubernatorial scrap. Russell has sought to join issue with Crisp in debate on the same platform, and Crisp recently agreed on condition "Russell first retract the false and malicious statements he had made during the campaign affecting the personal character and integrity of Mr. Crisp."

Unholy Alliance Charged.

Which of course meant no debate, and there the matter stands. Crisp went a step farther to assert that such a debate, if held, "would be merely personal on the part of Mr. Russell." "Such a debate," he added, "would be offensive to the people of Georgia, and Mr. Crisp declines to enter it."

In the race for the governorship, for the moment at least, attention is claimed by a charge of Candidate Eugene Talmadge, commissioner of agriculture, that there was an unholy alliance of some undefined sort between former Gov. Thomas W. Hardwick, a candidate, and John N. Holder, another candidate, on the matter of cement. He called Hardwick and Holder the "Siamese twins."

Sugar Rations Cut Sharply By Soviets on Short Crop

Ravages of Insects and Neglect of Refineries Cause of Acute Beet Slump; Grain Yield Also Lower; Auto Factories' Output Better.

Moscow, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—The sugar and candy rations of the millions living under the Soviet regime were sharply reduced today, with prospect of the poorest sugar beet crop in years.

Sugar prices soared on the private markets. Newspapers predicted an acute sugar shortage.

Swarms of destructive insects and the neglect of planters were reported as working together to devastate the sugar beet acreage. It was estimated that one-third of the total acreage was overrun.

There had been prospects of a substantial improvement, but these faded with the arrival of reports from the sugar beet regions. Despite the difficulties encountered in the spring planting, the acreage cultivated exceeded those of former years. But after the planting the farmers neglected their fields. Insect pests were more numerous than usual.

Newspapers coupled these adverse crop reports, with the lack of sugar beet harvesting machinery and the failure of the sugar refineries to make preparations for the new crop, to draw a pessimistic picture.

But with these threats facing the sugar industry, there were reports of improvement in the Soviet automobile industry. The Stalingrad tractor factory, after a serious decline in production for several months, reached a daily output of between 130 and 140 during the first ten days of August. The daily output in July was 78. The Kharkov tractor plant also reported an improvement, but less striking.

The Stalin automobile works, Moscow, stepped up production to 50 trucks daily, but was still behind its daily schedule of 75. The so-called Ford plant at Nizhnivovgorod produced 320 cars during the first ten days of August. Only 259 cars were turned out during the previous ten days.

$60,000,000 ILLINOIS COAL LOSS CLAIMED

Leaders Base Figures Upon Importation; Miners Plan to Extend Strike.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—The Illinois coal industry's bid for a stake of $60,000,000 a year in increased revenues today faced temporary stalemate as striking miners planned to extend operations into counties where pits are still working.

That amount, leaders in the industry estimated, represents what the mines have lost through importation into Illinois and nearby States of cheaply produced coal from Eastern fields.

Only a few fields in Franklin, Terry and Williamson counties, strike leaders said, planned further operation. Idle shafts and cordons of pickets marked the path of the army of striking miners, about 10,000 strong, which moved through Christian County last week successfully persuading fellow workers to drop pick and shovel in protest against the $5 daily wage scale.

The Peabody Coal Co., operators of mines in Christian County, blew whistles tonight, however, inviting the idle men to work at the agreed scale. About 150 special deputies were sworn in by Sheriff Wieneke to protect miners wishing to brave the picket lines.

The company said it believed if outsiders left workmen alone, the mines soon would be operating again.

Dan McGill, Springfield strike leader, said the strikers who seek return of the previous $6.10 wage would seek recruits through peaceful means, working by committees to convert workers to their cause. There will be no immediate invasions of operating fields by the strikers, he said.

GEORGIA FLIER WINS FIRST LEG IN DERBY

ton, and J. D. Crane, New Haven, Conn.

A tail wind, estimated at 10 miles an hour, speeded the fliers on their way. Weather conditions were reported excellent.

Every available foot of space at the airport was jammed yesterday as the large crowd gathered to watch the 28 crack pilots lift their trim and flashily colored ships into the air at the start, and to witness an elaborate program of acrobatic flying.

Groomed for the event after a week of intensive preparations the pilots headed for Winston-Salem, N. C., first stop on the 2,376-mile flight that will carry them into fifteen States en route to Cleveland, where cash prizes of more than $10,000, several automobiles and the Cord Trophy await the winners.

New Yorker Flies First.

J. H. Tuohy, jr., of Olean, N. Y., was given a tremendous ovation by the crowd at 1 minute of 3 as he taxied his small plane to the starting point. At 3 p. m. officials gave him the flag, and a minute later he was in the air. His plane was judged the slowest in the time trials conducted last week and his high handicap allowed him first starting position.

Closely following Tuohy were Fred Dorset, Augusta, Ga.; Helen MacCloskey, 22-year-old Pittsburgh aviatrix; J. A. Fields, Bradford, Pa., and Helen Richey, 22, Pittsburgh.

These five were the only fliers with planes having a speed rating in test trials of less than 100 miles an hour. The last plane away, the fastest in the race, that of Jack Morris, of Pittsburgh, was rated at 149.5 miles an hour.

In sixth place E. W. Stitt, of 422 Roxboro place northwest, was the first local entrant to get away. Henry Brown, of the Ludington Line, took off in twenty-fifth position.

Pilots of the Eastern wing leaving here yesterday will fly to Bartlesville, Okla., where they will meet with a contingent of fliers from the Pacific Coast competing in the same race.

An hour and 12 minutes elapsed between the take-off of the first contestant and the last.

The complete itinerary of the Atlantic Derby, which from Bartlesville will be the combined itinerary of the Atlantic and Pacific wings, follows:

Winston-Salem, night stop; Spartanburg, S. C., noon stop; Atlanta, night stop; Birmingham, Ala., noon stop; Jackson, Miss., night stop; Shreveport, La., noon stop; McAlester, Okla., fuel stop, and Bartlesville, night stop.

From the rendezvous the two wings will proceed to Jefferson City, Mo., noon stop; East St. Louis, Ill., night stop; Indianapolis, noon stop; Cincinnati, night stop; Akron, noon stop, and Cleveland, finish of the race, Saturday.

Flying Program.

In addition to the take-off of the derby, visitors at the airport were entertained with a varied program of flying. At 9 a. m. the public was given its last chance to inspect the contestants' airplanes.

The Cleveland stunt team of Bettie Lund and Arthur Killips staged exhibitions of acrobatic flying at 10 a. m. and at 1 p. m. George Brinkerhoff, of the Brinkerhoff Flying School, of College Park, Md., also stunted.

Jerry Weserling and Roger Don Rae made several parachute jumps. Several out-of-town planes landed at the field, bringing sportsmen pilots from throughout the East here to witness the derby start.

FIRST LEG IN PACIFIC DERBY WING ENDED

Illinois Aviator Leads From Los Angeles to Yuma; One Forced Down.

Yuma, Ariz., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Art Carnahan, of Bloomington, Ill., led the 55 other contestants of the Los Angeles-Cleveland Air Derby into their first stopping place today at 3:45 p. m., Mountain standard time, establishing, under the handicap system, a perfect score of 270 points.

Carnahan covered the distance from Los Angeles in elapsed time of 1 hour and 59 minutes. Roy Hunt, of Norman, Okla., was second, scoring 162 points. Gladys O'Donnell, of Long Beach, Calif., was third, receiving 108 points.

Others among the first ten: William E. Bleakley, Oklahoma City, 67.5 points; J. L. O'Donnell, Long Beach, 49.5 points; Waldo Waterman, Santa Monica, Calif., 27 points; J. S. McDonnell, Cleveland, 13.5 points; Marshall Headle, Burbank, Calif., 10.8 points; Gene Redewill, Phoenix, Ariz., 8.1 points; Joe Thompson, San Antonio, Tex., 5.4 points.

The airplane piloted by Al Larry, Los Angeles, was forced down in the desert ten miles west of Yuma.

Leave Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Fifty-six airplanes took off here today on the Los Angeles-Yuma leg of the Pacific wing of the Transcontinental Sweepstakes Handicap Air Derby to the national air races at Cleveland, Ohio.

First in the air was the ship of John Hardesty, of Taft, Calif., whose take-off was timed at 12:25:37 p. m. (Pacific standard time). Next was Leslie C. Miller, of Los Angeles. He was followed by Mary Charles, of Los Angeles, one of eight women pilots in the race.

Thereafter the flying field cleared rapidly, last to go being Gladys O'Donnell, of Long Beach, once winner of the annual derby, and Jim Granger, of Santa Monica. All of the ships had departed in 51 minutes.

Weather Is Hazy.

The first leg will be judged by elapsed times to Yuma, which the first airplanes should reach by 5 p. m., Mountain time.

The take-off was made in hazy weather.

The pilots are competing for $10,000 in cash and other prizes. The plotted course across the country will take them to Cleveland next Saturday with the Atlantic wing of the derby, which started from Washington, D. C.

From Yuma the schedule takes the Western fliers to Tucson and El Paso Monday; Roswell, N. Mex., and Lubbock, Tex., Tuesday; Abilene, Tex., Oklahoma City and Bartlesville, Wednesday; Jefferson City, Mo., and East St. Louis, Ill., Thursday; Indianapolis and Cincinnati, Friday, and Akron and Cleveland, Saturday.

Machine Gun Bullets Rout Picketing Miners

Benton, Ill., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Franklin County deputy sheriffs, wielding clubs and flourishing revolvers, broke up a mass meeting of miners at West Frankfort today and then moved on Orient No. 1 mine and dispersed about 200 men on picket duty there tonight.

A volley of machine gun bullets was fired over the heads of the picketing miners when officers first arrived at the Orient mine. The miners scattered and police then used clubs to complete their work of driving away the pickets so the night crew could return to work in the mine. Several men were struck over the head but none was reported seriously injured.

farm holiday movement to raise prices in this section, but as yet has not completed organizaton and holds no office. He introduced representatives of farmers, who have been picketing Sioux City approoaches, during the meeting.

Sioux City, Iowa, Aug. 21 (A.P.). As the farm strike entered its second week, blockading highways leading into Sioux City, Mayor W. O. Hayes, in a statement today, urged a conference of governors to consider the situation.

"For the past week," said the statement, "Sioux City has been the center of a movement that threatens to sweep the Middle Western States like a prairie fire. Here have occurred the first demonstrations in the so-called farmers' holiday or strike against buying and selling.

"It is no exaggeration to say that thousands of farmers and owners of property throughout the farming regions will be unable to pay taxes this year due to diminishing income," he said. "Many schools will not be opened in these States this fall. Others will be operated on limited schedules. In my opinion an emergency of first magnitude exists, one in which I detect a potential threat of serious consequences to the Nation. To minimize the seriousness of this situation would be a grave mistake."

He said the "situation transcends any question of merely local interest," and should be dealt with by the governors of the States in which the movement has gained headway.

Meanwhile pickets patroled the seven States and Federal highways into this terminal, barring truck shipments from Iowa, South Dakota and Nebraska farmers. Representativ , of the National Farm Holiday Association, sponsoring the strike, asserted nearly all counties in the territory contiguous to Sioux City in the three States had been organized for participation in the strike. Charlton, Spencer, Blencoe and Boont in other sections of Iowa also reported adhesions to the picketing movement.

Lewiston, Idaho, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Farmers in the Genesee, Idaho and Colfax-Pullman, Washington district have banded together to withhold all wheat from the market for 60 days unless a profit can be made.

First-grade wheat is quoted at 37 cents a bushel at Genesee. The organized growers control 5,000,000 bushels of grain.

A number of Genesee growers have gone further, more than 100 farmers signing an agreement to ask for a bid of 75 cents a bushel or no sale for 60 days.

MAGAZINE SAYS IDLE TO TOTAL 11,000,000

Survey Leads to Prediction 25,000,000 Will Be Charity Objects.

New York, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—Twenty-five million persons will be dependent upon public relief this winter, according to a startling survey made by the magazine Fortune, and released today.

The magazine made a Nation-wide analysis of unemployment and the relief private and semipublic agencies are affording to the distressed. Its article is captioned: "No One Has Starved!" beneath it, a subhead adds: "That Is Not True."

The number of unemployed will be 11,000,000 at the present rate of increase, by winter, according to the magazine. With their dependents, it estimated the total number without income at 27,500,000. Of this figure, it was believed 2,500,000 would have savings or other resources.

Inertia of Misery.

The relief programs of the last three years were described as "wasteful and uneconomic."

"There can be no serious question of their failure," Fortune said, "the theory was that private charitable organizations and semipublic welfare groups were capable of caring for the casuals of a world disaster. The result is the picture now presented in city after city and State after State—heterogeneous groups of officials and unofficial relief agencies struggling under the earnest and untrained leadership of local men of affairs against an inertia of misery, suffering and want they are unable to overcome."

"The problem was never honestly attacked as a national problem—the facts were never frankly faced as facts," Fortune continued.

Weekly Allowances.

"Few if any of the industrial areas have been able to maintain a minimum decency level of life for their unemployed. Budgetary standards have been discarded. Food only, in most cases, is provided, and little enough of that. Rents are seldom paid. Shoes and clothing are given in rare instances only. Free clinics are filled to overflowing. Weekly allowances per family have fallen as low as $2.39 in New York, with $3 and $4 in most cities and $5 a high figure.

"City after city has been compelled to abandon a part of its dependent population.

In New York, Fortune said, about 1,000,000 out of a working population of 3,200,000 are unemployed.

"The situation in Philadelphia was described by its community council in July, 1932, as one of "slow starvation and progressive disintegration of family life," Fortune said.

MOLLISON GREETED AT ROOSEVELT FIELD

I was too tired and decided to spend the day in bed."

"I am tired," Hollison added, "but not too tired."

He grinned infectiously, and the crowd cheered.

One perspiring little man who had run along behind the car half around the field finally caught up with it, thrust his hand at Mollison and yelled:

"Shake, captain; I'm Scotty."

Mollison grinned and shook the man's hand warmly.

Asked if he had any message for his homeland, the captain said:

"You may tell them I am here, and glad to be here. You may tell my wife I expect to see her soon."

Longed to Visit Here.

Mollison, who made the flight from Port Marnockstrand, Ireland, to New York in the total flying time of 36 hours and 1 minute, with stops at Pennfield Ridge and St. John, New Brunswick, said he was realizing a long-standing ambition to visit New York.

"And being an aviator," he added, "I am very glad I was privileged to use the form of transportation I know best to get here."

Mollison remained in the cockpit of his plane, with its uncushioned seat, until customs inspectors had cleared his entry into the country.

Immediately after stepping out of the plane he was provided with a cigarette. A policeman, with trembling fingers, lighted it and the flier, who had been 5 hours and 13 minutes riding down on a slight tail wind from St. John, smoked contentedly. Under the cowling of his cockpit was a little sign, "Smoking Prohibited."

Mollison was clad in a gray herringbone suit under a gabardine coverall. He wore no hat.

Letter for Mayor Walker.

After being greeted by members of Mayor Walker's official reception committee, he was whisked away in an automobile to a New York hotel. He carried a letter to Mayor Walker from Mayor Bryne of Dublin. He is expected to remain in New York two or three days, at least, although friends conceded his important plans are unsettled.

Reaching his hotel in New York, Mollison slicked down his blonde hair to pose for photographers and then his first thought was for Dr. James A. Kimball, meteorologist of the United States Weather Bureau and oracle for all Atlantic fliers.

Mollison said he would start his return flight just as soon as Dr. Kimball gave the word. He plans to take off from Roosevelt Field, stop at Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, only long enough to refuel, and come down at Croydon airdrome the next day.

Plans for Return Hop.

During his brief stay here he expects to concentrate on his plans for the return hop. He expressed regret that he probably would be unable to visit Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam, whom he met in London, and other American fliers whom he knows by reputation.

He said, however, he wanted to return to this country later for an extended visit.

London, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—Still hailing the daring flight of Capt. J. A. Mollison across the westward Atlantic passage, London newspapers agreed today that he would be knighted soon after his return from America.

The newspapers were filled with columns devoted to the little Scotsman who made the first solo flight westward. Londoners followed his activities in America with the greatest interest.

Veterans Told Former Soldiers Want Peace

Warsaw, Poland, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Col Edgar White, president of "Fidac," at a convention of war veterans today declared that 8,000,000 former combatants earnestly desired to settle future controversies peacefully.

He qualified his statement, however, with the remark that no nation could wholly disarm without a guarantee of full security. In the name of the American Legion he expressed sympathy for the death of Mme Moscicki, wife of the president.

U. S. CHEMISTS FIND NEW ANTIGERM RAY

Form of Ultra-Violet Flare Held Effective on Deep Bacterial Infections.

Denver, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—A "new force" for producing disease-killing rays within the human body was announced in a report to the American Chemical Society here tonight.

The rays are ultra-violet light. They are planted in the body like bombs, by injecting certain chemicals into the area to be rayed. The chemicals are perfectly "dark" by themselves, but transform into ultra-violet flares when X-rays are turned upon them.

"These studies," says the report, "have great hope in the treatment of obscure and deep bacterial infections, as well as great possibilities in the future study of cancer."

The report was made by Dr. Ellice McDonald, director, and Dr. A. J. Allen, physicist, of the Cancer Research Laboratories of the University of Pennsylvania. It was made public by the society on the eve of its annual fall meeting here.

The chemicals are all organized—that is, made from plants or animals. When they "light up" under X-rays their ultra-violet rays range from lengths of from 3,000 down to 2,000 Angstrom units. This means simply that the rays are shorter and more powerful than any ultra-violet reaching the earth from the sun.

All of them are lethal to individual body cells, said the report.

Killing power seems due to the fact that body cells are virtually armored against some of the wave lengths of the rays, and unprotected against others. So killing a cell is largely a matter of selecting light rays. Over this selection the scientists have some control, because the chemical compounds forming bombs give off different lengths of ultra-violet.

The outstanding new point of the discoveries is a method of placing these powerful rays inside the body, possibly exactly within the site of the disease. From lamps they do not penetrate more than skin deep.

Another striking circumstance is that recently other scientists have found evidence that the body produces its own ultra-violet light, apparently all the time, a very faint type, but one seemingly associated rather intimately with health.

Man Halts Log Trip Down Mississippi

Left Grand Rapids in July and Hopes to Reach Goal by Thanksgiving.

South St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 21 (A. P.)—Tom Connelly has halted his log journey down the Mississippi River to New Orleans temporarily—to get a new log.

It must be a Wisconsin cedar so Tom yesterday tied up the battered length of the wood which has carried him 400 miles on his trip from Grand Rapids, Minn., and journeyed overland to his home at New Richmond for another log, a brief visit to his wife and seven children, and a short rest.

Prodding logs through river waters is old stuff to Tom, who is 55. He started his voyage to New Orleans—which he expects to reach in time for Thanksgiving dinner—the middle of July. The 18-foot cedar log is fitted with an outrigger to aid him to keep his balance. He travels about 20 miles a day and has already negotiated seven dams and rapids with his craft.

Legionnaires to Ride In Lists on Saturday

Jousting combats, riding full tilt at suspended rings and other feats of horsemanship will be seen at the old-time tournament to be staged by Southern Maryland Legionnaires Saturday at Seaside Park, Chesapeake Beach. A six-acre lot is being cleared near the beach for the tourney.

The winner will be rewarded by the "Queen" at a coronation ball at night in the Seaside ballroom. The queen will be chosen from among the fairest ladies at the tourney. Calvert Post, No. 85, is sponsoring the tournament and other Legion posts will participate.

Visitor's Car Robbed of Clothing.

Several dresses and other clothing was stolen from an automobile belonging to Marion Woodward, of Kalamazoo, Mich., yesterday, when she parked it in front of the Cairo Hotel, where she is staying.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

Sylvia Sidney, Popular Paramount Star, Advocates Cold Shower.

I HOPE you will be as interested as I was to know that Sylvia Sidney is an advocate of the cold shower. She stimulates her face with ice massage once a day and the body with cold showers.

If you've been reading this column regularly (and I naturally hope you have), you know that the cold shower has been praised in no uncertain terms. Summer time is the right time to get the cold shower habit! And those of you who can stand the shock of the cold and find it refreshing and invigorating should indulge every morning. In itself, the shower is a splendid "pick-up" treatment.

Neck Ring Shower.

By the way, if you have found the shower objectionable, because it "puts the damper on a newly set wave," here's a bit of encouraging news. There's a new trick in the shower that girds the throat and splashes from the neck down, with never so much as a sprinkle on the hair wave.

Miss Sidney takes her baths in the mornings and again before dinner at night. What with long hours of work at the studio and a full social life as well, she has often been known to remove her camera make-up, jump under her shower, then into a dinner frock and more suitable evening make-up and off to keep her social engagement.

Make-Up.

Miss Sidney's dressing table at the studio is a duplicate in equipment of the one in her boudoir at home. Three complete sets of make-up are to be found on each. One for camera, one for daytime, one for evening. The camera, you know, does queer things to colors, and screen make-up would appear decidedly bizarre for ordinary daytime or evening wear. Her cosmetic problems are unusual because her coloring is so distinctive with her raven black hair, pale olive skin and jade green eyes.

The shape of her face is unusual, too, almost heart-shaped, with eyes set far apart, broad, high forehead, pointed chin, short, upturned nose. The shape and setting of her eyes give her that wistfully sad expression that has endeared her to the public.

For daytime Miss Sidney uses little make-up; an ecru or ochre powder, medium lipstick, orange toned, and just a touch of rouge or none at all. A black eye pencil is touched to brow and to the lower lid of the eyes.

For evening, green or blue eye-shadow is added and a brighter lipstick. Her evening make-up varies, by the way, according to the color of the costume. With white, a deep suntan shade of powder makes a striking contrast; bright lip rouge, but no cheek rouge and blue eye-shadow; with pastel colors or black, a lavender powder, dark red lipstick, blue or purple eye-shadow and mascara.

Only two meals a day to keep bulges away, and fried foods and starches are taboo on Miss Sidney's diet. Dancing and hiking are her hobbies, and help to keep her figure sylph-like, somewhere between 104 and 106 pounds, which isn't an awful lot for 5 feet 4, is it?

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"LEO."

IF August 22 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:20 a. m. to noon, from 4 p. m. to 5:50 p. m. and from 9 p. m. to 10:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 a. m. to 10 a. m. and from 2:10 p. m. to 3:40 p. m.

The planetary aspects of August 22 denote a day characterized by moderate success and reasonable achievement. A way out of some present difficulty will be revealed; a good solution of actual perplexities will present itself. Romance promises pleasant surprises. Travel is also indicated.

A child born on this August 22 will be exceptionally self-willed, and will know it all, even more so than the average boy or girl. The hard knocks of experience will be the only effective means of giving it a correct sense of proportion. It will be emotional, foolishly jealous and childishly envious.

You, if born on August 22, are quick to grasp new ideas and prompt in making decisions. On meeting people for the first time you immediately size them up in your mind, and there they remain for all time, permanently classified. The many errors of judgment that you perpetrate do not succeed in persuading you to alter your methods. You are quite outspoken in speech, as well as direct and natural in action. You are diametrically opposed to affectation or "make-believe" and are downright in your sincerity. You have many beliefs that are in conflict with conventionality. You do not hesitate to voice them and to live them—in spite of criticism and ostracism.

You read a great deal—in fact, books are a constant source of pleasure to you. Gifted with an active brain, you do not take your opinions from others, and rarely subscribe to public opinion. Such an attitude does not make you popular. Originality is not always successful, nor is independence of action or thought—except in the case of a genius—an asset that can always be profitably capitalized.

Your home life, based on loyalty and affection and without pettiness, will be singularly happy, and free from those differences that so often arise from trying to live up to neighbors' ideas.

Successful people born on August 22:

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

DRESSING THE BABY.

(Bureau of Home Economics.)

A baby is no longer a bulky bundle, swathed in long, cumbersome garments that make it difficult for him to exercise his legs or for the mother to change him. Light, loose, smooth, comfortable short clothes are now used for babies at all seasons. If the weather grows colder extra garments—sweaters or wrappers—can be put on, but the slips are made to free the little ones entirely from long, heavy skirts, neckbands that bind, sleeves that are hard to get into, buttons that make hard lumps, and ornamental styles that serve no useful purpose. These simple new style garments are also easier to wash and iron than the kind formerly used, for they open right out flat on the ironing board. In dressing, you can spread the slip out and literally wrap it around the baby, with the least possible trouble to him or his mother.

All of the designs in infant's wear evolved by the clothing specialists of the Bureau of Home Economics are now obtainable in commercial patterns, and a list of these can be obtained by writing to the bureau. A good feature of these designs is the small amount of cloth required to make them. Fifty-eight inches of nainsook (1⅝ yards) will make two bias sleeveless slips, one of the most satisfactory styles, and a yard will make a slip with short raglan sleeves, also cut on the bias. Some of the slips can be made on the straight of the goods, but the bias cut is recommanded as one which permits freedom of movement with less material, also less construction.

Nainsook, batiste, or other fine, smooth finished white cotton material is generally selected for a young baby's slips. Sometimes for the sake of variety a mother likes to use a little color for her baby's clothes. Pastel shades like orchid, peach, pink, light blue, yellow or delicate green are very attractive and easily obtained by dying the material in the piece, if you can not find a good quality of material in the color you prefer. The advantage of keeping a baby dressed entirely in white is, of course, that his clothes can be boiled or bleached when necessary.

The finishing-off touches constitute one of the greatest charms of the new baby's garments exhibited by the clothing specialists of the bureau. Every mother feels that a touch of handwork adds greatly to the appearance of a dainty little slip, and in these the handwork is used for the finishing of the edges and fastenings. To keep everything as flat as possible, some of the edges are rolled and whipped, some are finished with a narrow shell-edge, others are hemmed and trimmed with a decorative stitch in pastel color, and a few are bound with a tiny fine binding, in which a sufficient amount of the garment is caught under the binding to prevent it from pulling off.

Narrow 3-16 inch twistless tape is used for tie strings. The ends are doubled back and wound around with embroidery thread, held secure by occasional stitches. They look much like a shoelace tip. A recent questionnaire sent out to mothers indicated that 75 per cent preferred tie strings to buttons and buttonholes. However, the latter can be used if preferred. When either buttons or tapes are sewed to a single thickness of material, they should be stayed at the back with a bit of tape. Buttonholed or crocheted loops for either ties or buttons should be made very firm.

Soldiers' Home Resident Attacked.

Ralph C. Krauthein, 24, who gave his address as the Soldiers' Home, was cut about the head yesterday during an altercation at 474 L street southwest. He was treated at Casualty Hospital and released. A colored man, said to be his assailant, was arrested for investigation.

Delightful summer dress so enticingly cool—you'll love it.

It's remarkably inexpensive too.

A sheer handkerchief linen in tweed effect, made the original. It's quite the smartest idea now in Paris. It was dusty pink tones—young and flattering.

It's so simple to make it!

Sheer dotted batiste is immensely popular.

Then again, if you want it for real dressy occasions, a chiffon print is exquisitely dainty.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

Right—Hat of brown lyons velvet, softly draped in three points. Center—Turban with twisted brim in two colors of velvet matched by twisted velvet neckpiece and tiny flared veil. Lower left—Chic hat of black velvet with stiffened wings, with two white velvet buttons for trimming. (Seen on Fifth avenue.)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 21.—Sing a song of footpence, pockets full of pains—all the footie little crow's feet, starting out to cry * * * footie, footie—and a few more crow's feet * * * no I ain't gone anything but feet foolish, my deah. You would have feet on your mind yer'selluf, if you had been Olympicknicking around in 5-inch high Parisienne sandals.

Yeah, I know I shouldn't have—do as I say, but nevah as I do—or did. Because I did, so that's that. You see, I just don't look my int'resting best in sportswear. Then, too, I have an international sartorial reputation to uphold, and, well, I just preferred to dress in the continental sports fashion—which is dressy, garden partyish afternoon wear, just as we wear at the races in Europe.

Ah, well! But what I really started to write was not a lament on my own foolishness, but a poem to footwear.

I've already told you that sandals are de mode. And that all shoes seemed to have become serious over night. Due, this, to the renewed interest miladi evinces in walking. Then some of you wrote and asked the latest style in shoes! Golla, didn't I just tell ya, in the article that prompted the question?

If by styles in shoes you meant toes and things, well, toes are about the only feature in shoes that can change their style. Heels, colors and materials are so much a matter of time of the day and the occasion. Toes either long and narrow, or short and round, or, as the newest style dictates, medium, seem to be the question. Well, the answer is that the medium toe, neither too round nor too pointed, is the mode.

And that you must wear comfortable shoes is the lovely lady law. I just can't rave too much about the ills that attend the wearing of poorly fitted or poorly made shoes. Beware cheap shoes. Well-made and expensive shoes at bargain-sale prices, yes. Otherwise, it will pay you many times to indulge in an extra dollar or two for your shoes.

* * * * *

You have so many fifteen minutesses, and half hours, in the week! You just never notice how they slip by—but if you ever knitted socks for soljers, you remember how many socks you managed to knit, don't you? Well, a clever finger reaches for a dainty bit of fabric and her needle and thread whenever she is waiting for the potatoes to boil, or for the baby to wake up—and somehow, busy though she is, manages to turn out many a dainty little collar or handkerchief or cuff for herself or for gifts or even to sell. Just send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this week's illustrated leaflet, and learn how to make some of the latest and daintiest collars—spare-finger time pretties.

* * * *

No one can deny that velvet is the fabric for fall hats! 'Twas this spring at the fashionable European races that the velvet hat first came into vogue—merely a forerunner, that was, of the autumn hat mode.

I have sketched something in velvet hats for you today, just to show you how darling they are. At the top is a tiny softly draped turban in a three-pointed effect, of brown lyons velvet. In the center a wee cloche that is tip tilted oh so very much to one side, though the veil that is worn with it makes it look less eccentrically posed! And the brim of this little hat is just rolled two colors of velvet ribbon—then in quite the accepted manner, miladi's scarf is two colors of rolled velvet, too. And sketched at the left below is another adorable hat, this time in black velvet with stiffened wings and sporting two flat white velve buttons for trimming.

How do you like the fall hat mode?

Au revoir!

MASTERS OF BRIDGE.

MR. WALTER MALOWAN is recognized by experts in New York and elsewhere as a master player, although it has never been his good fortune to be a member of any team winning a national championship. Some time soon, however—so marked is his skill and so sound is his game—he is sure to find that Fate, who has frowned heretofore, will smile and reward his efforts with success. Twice in recent tournaments has his team apparently been headed for highest honors, only to fail at the last moment through some unfortunate break. As a player he is equally good while playing the Dummy or on the defense.

Mr. Malowan was born in Vienna, Austria, August, 1884. He was graduated from the Frieas Military College, Vienna, in 1905, having completed a course at the Academy of Commerce a year previously. He now lives in New York, where he is engaged in the import business.

One of the marks of a good Bridge player is ability to count the holdings of partner or opponents as early in the hand as possible. This is one of the evidences of Mr. Malowan's playing mastership, and a good example of his methods of counting his partner's hand was given on the deal below:

South—Dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ 10 5 ♡ 8 4 3 2 ◇ A Q J 2 ♣ Q J 4
♠ K J 7 2 ♡ J 7 6 5 ◇ 10 7 6 5 ♣ 8	N W E S	♠ 8 6 3 ♡ A Q 10 9 ◇ K 8 ♣ 7 6 5 2
	♠ A Q 9 4 ♡ K ◇ 9 4 3 ♣ A K 10 9 3

Mr. Mallowan

The bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
1♣(1)	Pass	1◇(2)	Pass
2NT(3)	Pass	3NT(4)	Pass
Pass	Pass

(1) South naturally bids his longer suit first.

(2) North made the correct response. His hand was too strong to bid one notrump.

(3) South's correct bid here was one spade, in which case North would have bid one notrump, and this South should have raised to three. Obviously, South's hand was not strong enough for a Forcing Rebid of two spades.

(4) After partner's two notrump bid, this Raise to game was obvious.

West led the fourth best spade, a lead as good as any, considering his holding. While it was away from the minor tenace, any lead he made was quite obviously a leap in the dark. South won this trick with the 9, and considered his hand. Five club tricks were certain. He could still cash another spade, and he was certain of one diamond. Possibly South would have made his contract had he decided to set up the game-going trick in diamonds before running his clubs. However, his technique was faulty, and he decided, before doing anything else, to take 5 club tricks, and on the seventh trick the diamond finesse was tried, and Mr. Malowan won with the King. He knew from the opening lead that his partner had held but a four-card spade suit originally. He also knew that West would lead his longest suit against the notrump if he did not make a short-suit lead; as West had had but one club and had opened the spade 2, he therefore had held four hearts, four spades and four diamonds originally. Thus, turning the picture around, South could have held only one heart. Therefore Mr. Malowan now laid down the Ace of hearts, dropping South's King, and the East and West partnership won 3 more tricks in the heart suit, defeating the game contract by 1 trick.

Today's Pointer.

Counting the distribution of the suits in the hand of your partner or the Declarer is an essential element in successful Bridge play. The art of counting the concealed hands is not difficult, but requires close attention to every revealing play.

Tomorrow's Hand.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

South—Dealer.

North-South vulnerable.

	♠ 10 2 ♡ A J 2 ◇ A K 10 8 3 ♣ A Q 4
♠ J 8 6 3 ♡ K 10 8 6 ◇ 9 5 ♣ 9 7 2	N W E S	♠ 7 5 4 ♡ 9 7 5 ◇ Q J 4 2 ♣ 10 8 6
	♠ A K Q 9 ♡ Q 4 3 ◇ 7 6 ♣ K J 5 3

Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

How to Keep Well

MALARIA HOUSES.

ALL of us who live where there is, or has been, much malaria know the common belief to be that malaria is worse in certain neighborhoods than in others. Some vicinities have a reputation for malignant malaria and others for great prevalence, but with no exceptional severity, and still others have the evil reputation of having both quantity and quality.

People that live nearby think malaria comes to them from certain directions. Trees are planted as breaks on the malaria side in order to keep malaria off.

One of the great fights in the early days of the Panama Canal building period was as to whether homes should be screened on all sides or only on the swamp side.

There was considerable truth mixed in with the error of these common opinions. We know that no country is evenly malarial; that certain foci serve as malaria breeding places; that in some of these foci the disease is more malignant than in others. For instance, it is known that in the State of Illinois there are about 20 malarial foci and that these are responsible for about all the malaria there is in that State. The health department can point out about 20 neighborhoods and certain ponds, lakes, creeks and marshes therein that furnish the State with all the malaria it has.

Another of these common notions is that there are certain houses that are infested with malaria; that people who sleep in these houses, or even visit them, are liable to become infected. This common notion also has considerable truth in it. Infected mosquitoes are liable to hang around the houses in which they have fed. The scientist has opposed this opinion because he says a female full of blood goes out to find water in which to deposit her eggs. He, too, is partly right. But the mosquito is apt to hang around long enough to infect one or two people before she looks for water. Some find water in the house in which they have fed in which to lay.

And, finally, a recent discovery is that old females beyond the egg-laying urge live on for awhile, feeding wherever they get a chance. These old ladies like to get in a habited house and stay there. Finally, if a mosquito sickens after feeding she stays in the house where she fed.

The practical side of this means that screening is very important in the control of malaria. Poor screening is far better than none, provided the people in a house will spend a short time daily in killing mosquitoes. Mosquitoes that have fed at night are heavy, slow, and easily killed the next morning.

Breeding places near houses should be drained. Shrubbery and trees around a house make it more accessible to mosquitoes. Clayton Lane thinks that one reason primitive people escape malaria is because they have no chimneys in their houses. The house may be full of smoke, and mosquitoes kept away. The invention of chimneys spread malaria over the civilized world. It made houses more tolerable for mesquitoes. When the chimney was not in use it was a royal highway for mosquitoes. This means that in screening a house the fireplace must not be overlooked.

EATING OF LIVER.

Miss E. writes: I can eat only a small quantity of liver, so I broil a half pound of it a few minutes and then put it into a meat press. I get about three tablespoons of blood, which I drink once a day. By taking liver this way, is it of any value in helping me to overcome a noticeable but not very serious degree of anemia?

REPLY.

If you have pernicious anemia you need liver, liver extract, or stomach extract or juicee.

If your anemia is not of the pernicious type you need eggs, juicy meats, green vegetables, and a tonic of iron and copper. Trying to get a liver juice is punishing your stomach unduly, since your anemia is not of the kind that calls especially for liver.

CLEANING THE TEETH.

J. D. M. writes: Is it harmful to the teeth to squeeze a little lemon juice on the toothbrush and use it for cleaning? Is it beneficial?

REPLY.

Pickerill advises using fruit juices in cleaning the teeth. He thinks they cause a plentiful secretion of saliva and this cleanses the teeth. Most dental hygienists do not recommend fruit juices for this purpose.

FIBROID TUMOR.

Mrs. C. M. D. writes: 1. I have been told I had a fibroid tumor. Is this a condition that leads to cancer?

2. Can cancer be prevented?

3. How?

REPLY.

1. Sometimes it does; usually it does not.

2. Yes.

3. By proper attention to the fibroid.

FIGHTING IN BRAZIL CENTERS ON TUNNEL

Federal Troops Reinforced; 68 Rebels Captured in Battle of Bury.

Rio de Janeiro, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—The seventh week of the rebellion of the Sao Paulo Constitutionalists against President Getulio Vargas' government started today with no indications of a cessation of hostilities.

The opposing forces were hotly contesting the Mantequeria tunnel and the vital city of Cruzeiro was in the hands of the rebels, despite a continuous pressure of bombardment and airplane raids by the federals.

The federal chief of staff interpreted recent insurgent attacks at Mantequeira as due to an improved Federal position which was believed to be threatening the rebel flanks. A federal push from the Southern part of the State of Minas Geraes, 120 miles west of Mantequeira, was expected owing to the arrival of reinforcements from Bahia, Rio Grande do Sul and other regions.

The federal troops have captured Villa Lindoya in Southwestern Minas Geraes, which has been held by the Sao Paulo rebels.

Word came from the State government at Porto Alegre that the battle of Bury ended yesterday after a day and a half of continuous fighting along a battle front of eight miles. Federal forces captured 68 prisoners and rebel losses were reported heavy. The federal toll was 15 dead, 80 wounded.

Gen. Waldomiro Limas' column advanced 2 miles into the Pinhal region in the direction of Capao Bonito.

Port-Au-Prince, Haiti, Aug. 20 (By airmail) (A.P.).—President Stenio Vincent has proclaimed martial law for Port-Au-Prince, the capital, and certain other sections of Haiti as part of a government campaign against the opposition press. Since his proclamation five newspapers have been suppressed and two editors arrested, one of them being Jolibos Fils, a prominent radical. Under martial law the president can suspend the freedom of the press and dissolve the Haitian chambers, now in session.

Mexico City, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—The Sun Pacifico de Mexico, American-built railroad connecting Nogales and Guadalajara and owned entirely by the Southern Pacific, today had been in the hands of the Mexican government for one month with no indication as to when it will be returned to the control of its owners. The government took charge of the road July 21 under an emergency plan to restore service which had been interrupted almost a month by a strike of the line's 3,500 employes.

Quito, Ecuador, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—Senator Manuel Navarro, president of the Guayaquil and Quito Railway Co., was considered a probable candidate today to succeed President Alfredo Baquerizo Noreno in view of President-elect Neptali Bonifaz's disqualification by congress. The political situation continued unsettled with the government maintaining reinforcements of soldiers about the capital to prevent disorders. Dr. Alberto Guerrero Martinez announced his irrevocable resignation as president of congress.

Vera Cruz, Mexico, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—Workers in the American-owned sugar mill, El Potrero, today asked state authorities to expropriate the property. The mill is the largest in the State of Vera Cruz. The workers claimed the operators were unable to pay salaries amounting to 40,000 pesos.

Nanking Council Hints At Revision of Treaty

Nanking, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—A disgruntled element of the legislative council, who question the validity of the Sino-Japanese peace agreement because it was not submitted to the council before signatures were affixed, have indicated that they are planning to urge the government to revise certain points of the agreement.

The objectors charge that the agreement is derogatory to China's sovereignty. When the agreement was signed it had the approval of the central political council, which is superior in authority to the legislative council.

CHINA'S CRISIS HELD CLOSER TO SOLUTION

Hope Seen in Parley of High Leaders; Anti-Japanese Boycott Growing.

Shanghai, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—China's political crisis, precipitated by the resignation of the entire Nanking government cabinet August 9, was believed nearer solution today as a result of a conference between former Premier Wang Ching-Wei, Marshal Chiang Kai-Shek, former Finance Minister T. V. Soong and other leaders at the Kuling summer resort near Kiukiang.

Agreements were believed reached in the conference concerning a successor for Wang Ching-Wei as president of the executive council, agreements were arrived at also on matters pertaining to the north China military affairs emergency arising out of Marshal Chang Hsiao-Liang's resignation and the nation's fiscal affairs on which there has been much divergence of opinion within the government.

All of the participants in the conference returned to Nanking, where an official announcement is expected soon.

The seemingly reviving anti-Japanese boycott assumed larger dimensions in the public mind today as the Chinese Chamber of Commerce branded merchants active in the boycott as "traitors," and stated that it was launching an investigation. The Japanese alleged the Chinese chamber is supporting the boycott.

The past two days showed little change in the situation. Agitators continued to threaten violence against merchants unless they ceased to handle Japanese goods. The roster of Chinese dealers announcing themselves unwilling to handle Japanese merchandise was slowly but steadily growing.

The latest group to join the boycott is an association of small department store owners.

Anti-Japanese agitators also were active at Nanking, where they issued warnings to merchants that their shops would be bombed if they were discovered handling Japanese goods.

RELIEF FOR THE MASSES.

In his address to the graduates of Bryant-Stratton College Secretary of the Treasury Mills gave a comprehensive outline of how the Reconstruction Finance Corporation operates to help all the people. Critics who wish to discredit the relief agency have charged that it serves the banks and not the people. But the actual records of the corporation, as revealed through Secretary Mills' address, indicate that it serves the people through the banks.

Banks are the pivot around which all modern business revolves. Without them it would be utterly impossible to carry on farming, manufacturing or commerce in a normal way. A community without banking facilities is economically crippled and must remain so until a flow of credit is once more established. Secretary Mills emphasized the importance of banking facilities to the so-caled common man in these words:

> When a bank such as these closes, approaching it, first, from the standpoint of the depositor, it means that the wage earner may be unable to meet his bills or even to provide for such emergencies as sickness; that the housewife can not secure cash for daily necessities, or the householder for taxes; that installment payments fall far behind; that the merchant can not collect, and consequently can not meet his obligations to the middle-man and the manufacturer; and that these, in turn, who may be located in entirely different communities, find their operations hampered. It means that the farmer, if he be a borrower, has no place to turn to finance his crop, and if he be a depositor, may find himself deprived of the funds set aside to pay interest or taxes. It means that the manufacturer is unable to buy and carry his necessary materials unless he can obtain credit in some other community. It may well mean, if he be a depositor, that he can not meet his payroll.

One of every three Americans is a depositor in some bank, and most of those who are not depositors are dependent upon some one who does have a bank account. The savings of the people, the capital of business and the credit of agriculture are all at stake when banks are threatened with insolvency. It can not be said that a measure which protects the savings and capital of at least 40,000,000 Americans is class legislation.

Secretary Mills revealed that more than 20 per cent of all the banks in the country have obtained aid from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Ninety per cent of these banks are situated in villages, towns and small cities where they serve farmers, small business concerns and workingmen. It is difficult to imagine how a relief agency could furnish more direct and more beneficial aid to the rank and file of the people than the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has done.

IMMIGRATION CURBED.

Immigration to the United States during the fiscal year ending June 30 fell off 63 per cent. This means that only 35,576 aliens came here as permanent residents compared with 97,139 during the previous year. Immigration is at the lowest ebb it has reached for many years.

At the same time the number of emigrant aliens leaving the United States for permanent residence in other countries increased 67 per cent. A total of 103,295 aliens took their leave. Deportations were larger than ever before, reaching a total of 19,426, which means that in the general exodus Uncle Sam is getting rid of a large number of undesirable characters and criminals.

The net loss of population through migratory movements appears to have been about 100,000. The number of departing aliens exceeded the number of alien newcomers by 67,719. But the outflow of American citizens for permanent residence in a foreign country increased to 33,987.

Here is unmistakable evidence that the growth of population in the United States has been effectively checked. Much of the reduction in immigration is due to the drastic measures adopted by President Hoover to prevent alien competition with American labor in this critical period. But that can not account for the large number of both Americans and aliens leaving the country voluntarily.

Apparently the rush to America as a land of opportunity for people of all races has come to an end. Free land which is still available is not worth cultivating. Jobs are at a premium here as they are in every other part of the world. The American economic system has arrived at a period of maturity when phenomenal growth can no longer be expected. The waste places have filled up, and industry has grown to a point considerably beyond consumption needs. Henceforth the economic development of the United States should be slower and more steady.

So long as the present unemployment emergency continues, it is doubtless wise to leave the immigration laws unchanged. They are flexible enough to handle the situation without difficulty. But when it becomes necessary to relinquish the restrictions adopted under the "public charges" clause, further legislation will doubtless be in demand. Congress will then be urged to adopt a more selective law under which only those aliens who can fit into the industrial system without depriving any American of a job will be admitted.

INTEREST ON WAR DEBTS.

Last week the British government announced the conversion of bonds representing $6,447,000,000 of Britain's internal war debt from a 5 per cent to a 3½ per cent interest basis. In Europe this is considered a remarkable achievement. British officials are especially delighted because it means the saving of an enormous sum in interest.

In this country the popular reaction to this report is surprise that Great Britain has continued to pay 5 per cent interest on this war obligation for fifteen years. Most of the other countries of Europe unloaded a large portion of their domestic war debts upon the people in one way or another. In Germany the mark became worthless and was finally repudiated. France scaled her debt down by stabilizing the value of the franc at one-fifth of its former value. Great Britain, on the other hand, restored the pound to its former value after the war, and continued paying 5 per cent on a large part of her war-time bonds. From this point of view it is not surprising that Britain has experienced more severe financial disorders than has France.

Britain has been extremely generous to her own people who are creditors. Even now that these bonds have been converted to a 3½ per cent basis, they bear a higher rate of interest than Britain pays on her funded debt to American taxpayers. The average annual interest on this latter debt is 3.3. While Britain is paying 100 per cent with liberal interest to internal creditors, she agreed to pay only 80 per cent of her debt to American taxpayers. If interest is figured at 5 per cent, the funding agreement with Britain provides for only 70 per cent payment.

It is significant that no European economist advocates repudiation of the debts which the respective countries owe to their own people. Yet they clamor for cancellation of the debts owed to the American people. Taxpayers in this country may well remember that they are still paying interest on the money which was lent to Europe—much more interest than they will receive from the debtor nations when payments are resumed.

The case of France is a good illustration. The total French debt was $4,231,000,000. Since the date of settlement in 1925 France has paid $200,000,000 in both principal and interest. During the same period American taxpayers have paid in interest on Liberty bonds representing the loans to France a total of $1,228,000,000. If France does not pay this debt, the American people must pay not only the principal but the interest until the bonds representing France's indebtedness are finally retired.

The cancellationists argue that Europe's debts to this country have not been scaled down; that Uncle Sam is merely charging a low rate of interest. They entirely forget that American taxpayers are supplying funds to make up the difference between the low rates of interest charged European debtors and the interest this Government must pay on its bonds. The people should realize that it is not merely the $11,600,000,000 principal owed by Europe that is at stake. If the debts were cancelled, American taxpayers would also have to pay interest on these obligations until they could finally be liquidated.

UNCOORDINATED TAXES.

"The future of constitutional government," said Scoville Hamlin, economist, in a recent address to the American Taxpayers' League, "depends upon our achieving a better ordered, coordinated scheme of local, State and Federal taxes." Perhaps Mr. Hamlin was too emphatic in this statement, but the problem of allocating sources of revenue between the different governmental units has become acute in the last two years. Unless it is given attention both the State and national taxing systems will run into confusion.

State governments as well as the Federal administration have incurred large deficits. They are confronted with declining revenue and increasing demands. New taxes are just as essential in many States to preserve sound credit and avoid further debt as they were for the Government in Washington. Consequently, there is a scramble to preempt lucrative fields of revenue for both local and national needs.

Mr. Hamlin points out that prior to 1894 direct taxation was used by the Federal Government only in serious emergencies. The field of direct taxation was reserved to the States. But constitutional amendments and judicial decisions have swept away the prohibitions on direct Federal taxes, and the Government is now a formidable competitor of the States in levying and collecting taxes.

Once the Federal Government had a monopoly on consumption taxes. Now all the States levy some imposts of this kind. Income and inheritance taxes came into general use by the Government and the States at about the same time. In 22 States incomes are now taxed by two different governments, without any attempt at coordination. The injustices inflicted on some groups of taxpayers in this way have never been fully investigated.

The classical example of the confusion which has crept into this uncoordinated jumble of taxation is the gasoline tax. Every one of the 48 States levied taxes on gasoline before Congress placed a special tax on this fuel at its last session. A large percentage of the revenue thus obtained is spent on road building. Yet Congress invaded this field of State taxation and then advanced money to the States to aid their road building programs.

The problem of adjusting State and national taxes is particularly grave at present because of the increasing demands for revenue. Pennsylvania and Mississippi have recently been added to the list of States using the sales tax. When the States adopt this means of obtaining revenue the problem of a Federal sales levy becomes complicated. Yet no one can deny the right of States to collect revenue in this way, or the right of Congress to impose additional sales taxes upon those levied by the States.

Unless some plan for coordination of Federal and local taxes can be worked out injustice and confusion will be the rule and not the exception. The situation demands careful study. It might be unwise to seek new constitutional limitations upon the tax powers of either the local or national governments. But a general allocation of tax resources might be worked out to mutual advantage. A logical first step to such a program would be a national conference on taxation at which all the States and the Government would be represented. Any progress that could be made would benefit individual taxing units as well as taxpayers in general.

INDIA'S ELECTORAL PROBLEM.

The various religious factions and political parties of India were told last December by Prime Minister MacDonald that if the London round table discussions did not result in agreement upon the much-debated question of an electoral system one would be devised and installed by Great Britain. Now announcement of the plan for division of representation in the local legislatures of the provinces has been made, and, as was to be anticipated, the Moslems and Hindus, who could not adjust their own differences, are not satisfied with the settlement that has been made for them.

In general principle a federated India was agreed upon at the London sessions, and the present step is preliminary to the establishment of a national congress at Delhi; but that project still awaits further conferences with the native princes who are to join with the provinces in a division of representation. The sore point today is one that always met objection from Gandhi—the British demand that the 60,000,000 Untouchables be recognized. These Pariahs belong nominally to the great Hindu majority, but so far as actual association with them is concerned they are anathema.

The British provision that the Untouchables shall vote with the Hindus when in the minority, but that when they form a majority in a community they can vote as a separate constituency, is destined to stir up dissensions in the Hindu ranks. The newspaper Liberty, published at Calcutta, predicts that the awards will create an uproar from one end of India to the other and in all probability throw the country into a vortex of communal passions.

It does not appear probable that the British government looked upon its proposals as final, but rather as tentative, pending discovery of an acceptable division of representation. With a definite beginning it may be possible to work out satisfactory adjustments.

CHINA AND JAPAN

From the Christian Science Monitor.

An American rode recently with one of the best-known cabinet ministers at Nanking through Chapei, Kiangwan and Woosung, site of the Sino-Japanese conflict in February. Hardly a building had been left standing. But since the Japanese evacuation the vigorous tide of Chinese life has been flowing steadily back, and today streets are lined with hastily constructed dwellings, and shops of mud and tin are filled with busy people.

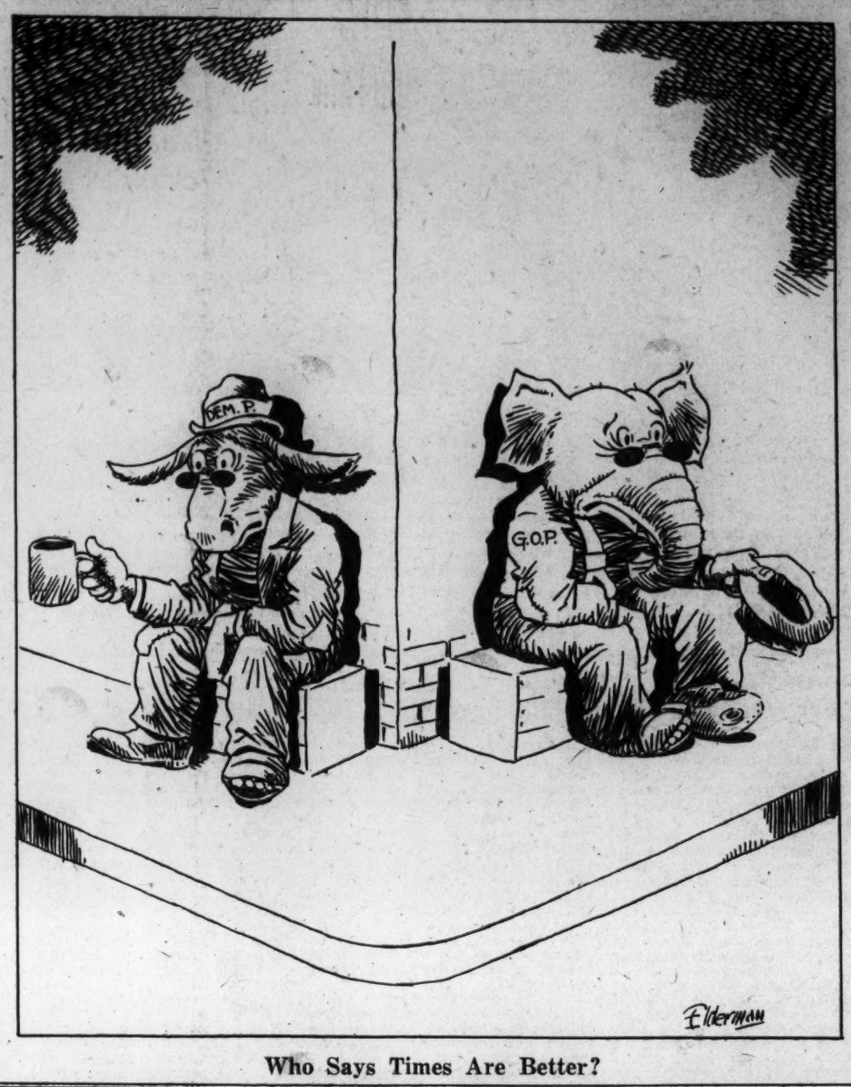
The American commented upon the capacity for prompt recuperation from disaster which the Chinese have always shown. Almost fiercely the cabinet minister replied: "Yes, here is evidence of our greatest strength and our greatest weakness. These little shopkeepers and factory workers never had much, but they lost all they had. Now in a few months they are back again almost where they were. But everything these people have done they have done without help. Their Government hasn't helped them in any way."

The destruction of Chapei and Paoshan, with a population estimated at more than a million, might be compared to the destruction of the great cities of Yokohama and Tokyo in the 1923 earthquake. The disruption of normal life was almost as profound. But while fires were still burning in Toyko and Yokohama, Japanese national and municipal governments were laying systematic plans for reconstruction. Characteristcially they seized upon this opportunity to rebuild the cities upon new and modern lines. Japanese individuals were tided over the emergency by government aid, and followed the precise instructions of the government in rebuilding. Visitors to Yokohama two years after the earthquake were surprised that so little had been done. Then almost overnight a new and better city arose. The government plans had been thoughtfully completed.

In the Shanghai cities there are no plans, except the plans of individuals to make the best of what they have. The reconstruction of Chapei today is more impressive than that in Yokohama in the same number of months after the disaster of 1923. But it is formless reconstruction, and the old problems of congestion, lack of sanitation, inadequate water supply, are being reproduced in aggravated form. Yet as individuals, the Chinese have accomplished more toward reconstruction than the Japanese did in the same time, and virtually without governmental help.

Government in Japan is all-pervading, and has been so for centuries. It regulates the life of its people from high to low. Policemen in Tokyo even fix the day for the semiannual house cleaning, and inspect each dwelling to see that it has been properly done. Government in China goes to the opposite extreme, as it has done for centuries. What the Chinese get, they get through their own initiative, even protection from bandits.

In the struggle between Japan and China now in progress, these opposing theories of government are in conflict. The result may hold much of interest for governments in other parts of the world.



Who Says Times Are Better?

POST HASTE

It is readily deducible from Gov. Roosevelt's Columbus speech that if the President had issued pessimistic instead of optimistic statements we would have had a much bigger and quicker depression.

Finding the little finger of his left hand unoccupied Mussolini combines three more cabinet posts and will handle them himself.

It is a compact little pact of tentative trade changes that England carries home from Ottawa since the Dominion jury was packed.

"Robbers steal fortune from Mississippi smokehouse." A modern farmer should also use a smoke screen when planting his jack.

Iowa farmers who refuse to market their products have resorted to the old alternative—they eat all they can and what they can't they can.

Cotton mills are turning out cloth that looks like summer flannel, but can they now produce textiles that will scratch like winter woolens?

The State relief fund is designed to supplement sincere local efforts, but it is being made clear that no locality can dump all its troubles on the R. F. C.

The apprehensive note from Gov. Roosevelt as he sees the chirography of better times upon the wall: "If either by manipulation or as a result of economic law a definite even though partial improvement in industrial production and commodity values were to begin in the near future would the people be satisfied to have a continuance of the same governmental policies?" Bet your bottom dollar on it.

After his remarks at Columbus it may be questioned whether Gov. Roosevelt is an unprejudiced judge for Mayor Walker's trial of Republicans.

The public will give more credit to the various credit proposals when they are converted into wages and work.

Gov. Roosevelt's repeated demand for more horse sense in this motorized age is an unexpected rebuke to the auto industry, which has been devoting all its energy to more horsepower.

LAUGHTER.

Thank God for laughter! When it rings
That instant care and doubt take wings,
And even pain and temples hot
Are temporarily forgot
And the false joys of power and pride
By comedy are thrown aside.

The joyous soul that can supplant
The dull monotony of cant,
The tedium of scheme and plan
Which marks the daily path of man
With laughter, sets his fellows free
From every human misery.

Who can be won to laughter rare
Is loosed from every bond of care.
Self, with its heavy weight of doubt,
Is for the moment blotted out.
For while man laughs he can't recall
That he has ever grieved at all.

The Safest Legacy for Your Children Is a Majority of Their Own Kind

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THE first duty of citizens is to preserve the state.

When the necessity arises, they must offer their fortunes and their lives to support and protect it.

But duty doesn't end with a present emergency. The state must be preserved for generations that will follow. The citizen's duty includes preparation for tomorrow.

The cynic will answer: "Let posterity fend for itself. I owe it nothing." But that isn't true.

This generation would be under no obligation to plan for the future if it could finish its business, die without progeny and surrender the land to a new race.

But when it brings children into the world and bequeaths to them its debts and its problems, it obligates itself to do everything within its power to make the life of those children endurable.

What can it do?

Well, the life men lead depends on their environment and their associates. The kind of civilization in which your children dwell will depend upon the kind of majority that dominates it.

Would you doom your son and daughter to live among savages or illiterates? Would you willingly bequeath to them a civilization dominated by their inferiors?

That is precisely what you are doing to your children and your children's children when you practice birth control.

America's birth rate is falling. And every decrease will make life harder for future generations of your breed, for the unfit and the undesirable have lost none of their fecundity.

In a natural state the fit survive and the race improves. But compassion now preserves the unfit and thus inevitably weakens the race.

What can you do about it? Society is not yet ready to protect itself by sterilizing the feeble-minded, the criminal and the degenerate. The only way to make America safe for your own kind in future is increase their number.

If the rich bear few children, little harm is done. Their number is small and they contribute little to the progress of the race.

It is from the self-respecting poverty of the middle class that America derives its leadership, patriotism, morality, ambition, sense of duty and hope of progress.

Whether this class or the unfit and undesirable shall inherit America depends on which is more prolific.

If you can't lessen the number of heathen, you can at least send a greater force against them.

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Owen Young on the Presidency.

Minneapolis Journal.

Owen D. Young now discloses that he refused to become a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the Presidency because he lacked special training for the post. His belief is that his own work has been along such an entirely different line that he is not fitted to "hold down that job in the White House."

Perhaps Mr. Young has made the common mistake of modern America in overemphasizing the value of special training. The woods are full of specially trained men who have failed dismally at their chosen lines of endeavor, because not fitted by nature for their tasks. Common sense and courage are more valuable attributes, in such an office as the Presidency, than any amount of special training. National politics is theoretically a school for potential Presidents. But national politics is all cluttered up with men who manifestly would lead the country into disaster if placed in the White House.

Forty Rooms.

Brooklyn Eagle.

This indestructible Union is made up of 48 indestructible States. Cynics will be inclined to ask why the Republican national committee has rented for the Hoover-booming campaign only 40 de luxe rooms in the new Waldorf-Astoria. Why were eight States left unrepresented?

Seriously, we think more modest if not smaller headquarters would have had a psychological advantage. It is hard-headed business that has to be done by Republicans and by Democrats in carrying through a presidential campaign.

Cal and Al.

Baltimore Sun.

The political managers of both parties will be able to get down to their quadrennial season's work in earnest only when they have made up their minds that they can rely on a pair of household words in their respective ranks. The Democrats lie awake at night or sleep fitfully and dream of cordial indorsements by Al Smith. The Republicans toss about and cast anxious eyes toward the North, searching the heavens for a sign that Calvin is to be not merely faithful but will become the Coolidgian equivalent of a flaming sword.

Possibly there are millions of Republicans who are waiting for a guiding suggestion from the hills of Vermont, and there may be Democrats who will never, never vote for Gov. Roosevelt until the Empire State Building tilts majestically in his direction. But, in view of all the things that are worrying most people at this particular stage of history, there is room for doubt as to whether it is so important that Coolidge take the curse off Hoover or Smith crown Roosevelt with his belated, though unquestionably important approval.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Vigorous Protest Against Vandalism in Grounds of Capitol and Library of Congress.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: For the following reasons, I have been wondering recently whether "a thing of beauty is a joy forever," and realizing "that you can not have your cake and eat it, too." I am doubtful of the first quotation because of the filthy condition of the grounds and sidewalks in and about the Capitol and Library. The second proves that inspirational beauty spots can not be maintained and at the same time permit them to be used as playgrounds and lounging places, at least, by persons who have no appreciation of their beauty. A great number are beating paths across the lawns, lounging on them, and leaving behind soiled newspapers, greasy paper bags, paper napkins, cellophane, chewing gum and candy wrappers, paper plates and cups, tin and wooden spoons, orange peel, match and cigarette cartons, tin tobacco boxes, whiskey and milk bottles, peanut shells, &c., until the grounds resemble a regular dump.

The stone top to the balustrade around the west plaza of the Capitol has been so hacked and initialed that there is scarcely a square inch of smooth surface left on the north end. It is the work of vandals. They have no respect for these beautiful places, nor for their fellow citizens. If they can not be controlled they should be exluded from the grounds, even if that means that we must all give up the pleasure of sitting there.

I do not believe that it is necessary for the Capitol lawns to be converted into ball parks. The fountain in front of the Library of Congress is often filled with the debris of the sort mentioned above, which takes away all pleasure of looking at the goldfish. The sidewalk in front of this building is generally so filthy from expectorations and the dripping of ice cream, that it is sickening to walk there. Also, recently boys were throwing as many stones as they could gather into the new fountain in the North Capitol plaza.

What we need is a number of officers to move constantly through these public places to help train these persons, some of them long since grown. They should have received a training in good manners at home, but it is never too late to learn.

Iowan Regards Mr. Hoover as a Dry and Debt Cancellationist—Takes No Stock in Acceptance Speech.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: We have had nearly four years of Mr. Hoover's acts to judge him by. Regardless of his acceptance speech, Mr. Hoover is a dry at heart and, if reelected, he will do very little that will be in any way comforting to the wets. Does it not seem queer that his change of heart could not come before election time? He double-crossed the wets in 1928 and is preparing the same dose for 1932. The fact that the drys approve his acceptance speech is highly significant.

Mr. Hoover's record shows that he is a foreign debt cancellationist and an internationalist. How about the moratorium for the first time linking reparations and war debts? His supreme effort to induce Congress to reopen the debt funding commission had for its purpose the lowering or canceling of debts—surely not raising the amounts owed us. In this case Congress saved us—not Hoover.

In his acceptance speech he said he opposed bureaus and commissions, in order to reduce taxes, but his record shows he has created more bureaus and commissions than any President in history.

Are we to accept the Hoover as we actually experienced him in the past four years, or are we naively to expect that he will reverse himself if reelected, simply on account of promises made in the heat of a political campaign? If Mr. Hoover could induce the public to judge him by his campaign promises, and forget his record of the past four years, he would be truly a clever politician. He states himself that he seeks reelection on his record. How then can his acceptance speech be considered seriously?

Californians Who Listened to Hoover's Speech Were Greatly Impressed.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It was a great thrill to sit here 3,000 miles away and listen to Mr. Hoover's speech of acceptance. No one could help being impressed by the way he spoke, whether they were his friends or not. Those of us who admire him so much could not help being moved by the way he spoke. It is the first time he has lifted the curtain so that people generally could have a real picture of Herbert Hoover the man. Those of us who know him well knew it was there and have had a glimpse of it now and then, but to most people he was the cold logician and impersonal official. I am sure he gained many admirers and supporters by what he said and the way he spoke Thursday evening.

Too Much Trash, Too Much Smoke. A Demand for More Stringent Regulations.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In answer to G. G. G.'s splendid letter in The Post of August 19, I want to say that there are many who heartily agree with him.

Daily in my walks around town, in the very best neighborhoods too, I wish that we had the stringent laws regarding trash that are enforced in Germany.

We are trying to make Washington the most beautiful city in the world. How can it be done when the smoke law is not enforced and our handsome and costly white buildings are soon begrimed by black soot? Could not our able Commissioners see to it that something is done about this matter?

OTTAWA TREATIES BEWILDER BRITAIN

Experts Puzzled by Granting of Concessions Without Assured Returns.

London, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—The first British reaction to the empire trade agreements signed at Ottawa, was one of bewilderment today. Experts pointed out that British delegates made tariff quota concessions to the dominions and colonies in black and white that were inescapable, but that with the exception of India and southern Rhodesia, none of the empire countries stated specifically what concessions would be made to Britain.

The British consumer, in the face of an additional tax on food, wanted to know what he was going to get in return.

Observers pointed out there will be no answer until the dominions submit their new tariff schedules to their Parliaments weeks hence. Great Britain could be open-handed in its agreements because with the exception of fifty-odd laborites and a few radicals and liberals, the government has no parliamentary opposition and is able to steam roller new schedules through without danger of reversal.

It was unknown if some of the free traders in the cabinet, notably Viscount Snowden, Archibald Sinclair and Herbert Samuel, would accept the new food taxes. Influential circles, however, anticipated no cabinet resignations, but rather an extension of the previous agreement, which allows members of the cabinet to disagree on fundamental policy.

There was a possibility that Parliament would be convened before October 27, to put the new agreements into effect. But cabinet members returning from Ottawa expressed their desires for vacations, and declared that the scheduled opening would give ample time for approval of the preference provisions in the import duties bill before they expire November 15.

Stanley Baldwin, head of the British delegation at Ottawa, will report personally to King George at Balmoral Castle, and later will visit Premier Ramsay MacDonald at Lossiemouth.

U. S. TRADE HARD HIT BY PACT AT OTTAWA

may be necessary to make effective and to maintain the preferences hereby granted by it."

Canada and other dominions get preferences of varying rates on dozens of articles such as butter, cheese, apples, some canned or dried fruits and eggs.

Schedule E is the one affecting the United States. It is to be kept secret pending Parliamentary approval of new tariff rates. It covers 220 items in which new or increased margins of preference will be given Britain. A veiled outline of the schedule follows:

"Unofficial understandings between the iron and steel interests of the two countries (Britain and Canada) are used as the basis of tariff adjustments on many items of the steel schedule, including not only the primary forms, but such processed and fabricated steels as cutlery, machinery and wire products.

"Revisions in the textile items relate chiefly to linens and to the major classifications of cotton and woolen fabrics.

"Other commodities embraced in the schedule include a very wide and important range of chemicals, flat glass, toilet accessories, guns, tableware and leather."

Might Reach $65,000,000.

British experts have estimated that the manufacturers' concessions granted by all the dominions, if they worked ideally, might take $65,000,000 a year in trade from the United States—4 per cent of America's empire trade and 1.7 per cent of her world trade. But they are "not expected to work ideally."

All the treaties are to run for five years but that of India—from the standpoint of value to Britain one of the most important.

Because of the shadow of Mahatma Gandhi, the agreement was made revocable on six months' notice.

In this agreement, Britain undertook to encourage the export of Indian cotton. Tobacco, another American export, is guaranteed ten-year preferential treatment at present rates. If the tobacco duty is lowered to less than 2 shillings and ½ penny a pound, the tobacco-growing dominions would get free entry. But the tobacco is not considered of sufficiently good quality now to compete with American tobacco.

In summary, the agreements carry out the announced work of the conference to stimulate empire trade and indirectly thereby to stimulate, not harm, world trade.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE NEWER SUMMER.

We used to go vacationing
In very regal style;
The family and two machines
In which we all could pile.
We had to tote a raft of maps,
So distant did we stray—
But now we take a trolley car
And don't go far away.

II.

We used to lease a cottage grand
By mountain, lake or sea;
It had to be a swell resort
Near real society.
The neighbors had to have some class
With blood a little blue—
But now we're not particular
And any folks will do.

III.

The man next door we asked about
And probed his family;
We liked to know the cottagers
Were folks of pedigree;
But now we grab up any shack
Located anywhere—
Cuz even if it's full of tramps
We're lucky to be there.

IV.

We used to have a motorboat,
A catboat and canoe—
The kiddies always had to have
An outboard boat or two;
But now we're shorn of motors and
Of every other craft;
It's funny now how good it seems
To sit upon a raft!

V.

We used to fish the summer through
With tackle very choice;
Our rods were most expensive and
They made our friends rejoice;
But now we don't go fishing much—
Those rods are all in hock—
It's curious what fun there is
With drop lines on a rock.

VI.

We used to play a lot of golf
And joined a seaside club;
We had the richest trappings, tho'
We played like any dub.
But now we lie around the porch
Or lounge upon the beach,
For all those things we used to do
Are now beyond our reach.

VII.

We used to have a summer wild—
A season fierce and gay—
There wasn't any seaside sport
At which we didn't play;
But now we simply hang around
And try to make the best
Of summer time in which we can't GET ANYTHING BUT REST.

WELL?

President Hoover has called a big conference of business leaders for August 26. It will be held in the Blue Room.

Tom Beck, magazine publisher and Connecticut game commissioner, has arranged to have trout streams especially reserved for ladies next season in the Nutmeg State. As a fisherman who tramped miles through Connecticut trout brooks this year, we would say the ladies are welcome to them.

Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL.

An example which the Washington police might follow has been set by Police Commissioner Mulrooney, who has caused the following placards to be displayed all over New York City:

"If you see a crime committed,

"If suspicious persons loiter about your premises,

"If danger threatens in any way,

"Telephone police headquarters and the new police radio system will bring you assistance in a hurry.

"Help fight crime."

(Signed) Edward P. Mulrooney, police commissioner.

Roy D. Chapin, recently appointed Secretary of Commerce to succeed Robert P. Lamont, resigned, will make his debut before the American people as a Cabinet member in an address over WRC at 9 o'clock tonight.

Mr. Chapin will discuss the current economic situation and the broad scope of the President's nine-point program to improve conditions by organizing concerted action and coordination between private business, industrial and financial, on the one hand, and governmental agencies on the other.

A NEW program series, presenting vocal and symphonic talent, to be known as the "Musical Album of Popular Classics" will be inaugurated over WMAL at 8:30 o'clock tonight. Andre Kostelanetz will be the conductor. Talent will include a symphony orchestra, a male chorus, Theo Karle, tenor; Barbara Maurel, contralto; Della Baker, soprano, and Crane Calder, bass.

The G. E. Circle program will reach listeners over a Nation-wide network at a new hour, beginning today at 4:45 o'clock. The programs will be heard daily at this time except on Saturday and Sunday, instead of 11 a.m. There will be no change in the G. E. Circle personnel.

ERNO RAPEE and his Parade of the States program will halt their tour of the Union tonight, and in the place of this program will broadcast the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild banquet from the banquet hall of the General Motors Building in Detroit. Several leaders of the motor industry, including Alfred E. Sloan, jr., will speak during the program.

RUDOLPH SCHRAMM'S orchestra and James Wilkinson, barytone, will do another in the series of popular broadcasts at 7 o'clock tonight. Schramm will give his own interpretation of Kreisler's "Tambourin Chinois," while Wilkinson has chosen "If You Were the Only Girl In the World," "I'll Never Be the Same," and "I Love You Truly," and selection from "Sally."

Howard Barlow has chosen the following selections for the symphony orchestra concert (WMAL, 10 o'clock) tonight:

Overture "La Finta Gardiniera" (Mozart), first movement from "New World Symphony" (Dvorak), "Passepied" from "Suite Bergamasque" (Debussy), "Sur les Cimes" from "Impressions of Italy" (Charpentier), ballet music from "Rosamunde" (Schubert), and "Nocturne" (Greig).

Cesare Sodero, conductor and staff director of the Philadelphia Opera Company, conducted his first orchestrat at the age of 14 at the Conservatory of Music, Naples, Italy.

Shot Record Broken by Sexton

Ex-G. U. Ace Betters His Own Unrecognized Mark.

Negro Youth Surprises With Fast Race in 100-Yd. Dash.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Leo Sexton, of the New York Athletic Club, today bettered his unrecognized world's shot put record with a toss of 52 feet 11¼ inches.

Sexton, former Georgetown University star, who won the Olympic shot-put championship with a heave of 52 feet 6 3-16 inches, was competing with numerous other Olympic athletes in a track and field exhibition before 50,000 persons in the Municipal Stadium. The exhibition was offered free by the mayor's committee for entertainment of the city's unemployed.

Sexton's unrecognized world's record of 52 feet 8⅝ inches was set at the American Olympic trials in Boston several weeks ago. The recognized world's record is 52 feet 6½ inches.

Owens Surprises With Speed.

The stadium track, rough, hard and bumpy, caused the stars of the recent international athletic classic plenty of trouble, but Jesse Owens, young Negro high school junior of Cleveland, ignored the poor footing to race to a spectacular victory in the 100-yard dash in 9.6 seconds.

His time was all the more remarkable in that it was made on a curved course.

Bill Miller, Olympic pole-vaulting champion, and William Graver, the former titleholder, took turns clearing various heights until they reached 13 feet 6 inches. Then they yielded to the cries of feet smarting from continual landings on the unsoftened baseball diamond and mutually agreed to call off the contest.

Johnny Morris, the Louisiana hurdle star, repeated earlier victories over Lee Sentman, of the Illinois A. C., by breaking the tape in 14.6 seconds, another creditable performance on a curved track. Carlini, of Italy, was third.

Alex Wilson, of Canada, former intercollegiate half-mile champion, won that event from Dr. Otto Pelzer, captain of the German delegation and former world-record holder, in 2:00.4.

Grimm, Two Players Fined $100 for Row

Cincinnati, Ohio, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—John A. Heydler, president of the National League, announced today he had fined Manager Charley Grimm, Pitcher Guy Bush and Infielder Woody English of the Chicago Cubs $100 each for their abuse of umpires during an altercation yesterday at Chicago in the game with the Phillies.

In the Wake Of the Game

WITH Wesley Ferrell out of the way, the Nats believe they have a fine chance of copping the remaining games of the set with the Indians and thus gaining a margin over them on season's play. The visitors now hold a 9-8 advantage. Fred Marberry, who looked good against the White Sox Friday, will be given another chance against the Tribe this afternoon, while Willis Hudlin is expected to oppose him.

President Clark Griffith yesterday exercised his options on a dozen players scattered among four minor league clubs. The Nat owner is taking action earlier than necessary because of the fact that so many minor leagues are failing these days that he wants to make his options a matter of record.

Those recalled are: Catcher Bolton, Infielders Andrus, Kingdon and Travis and Outfielder Gill, from Chattanooga; Pitchers Friedrich, Master and Thomas and Outfielder Powell, from Youngstown; Infielder McLeod, from Binghamton, and Pitcher Ragland, from Birmingham.

Porters' ordinary single in the second took a hop over West's head and went as a double, this "break" enabling Ferrell to score all the way from first to give the Indians a lead.

Altrock and Schacht were in Cincinnati yesterday clowning at an "old-timers" game.

The handicap of lack of pitchers was keenly felt by the Nats when Brown was up in the third with the bases loaded. Manager Johnson had to let the flinger hit for himself.

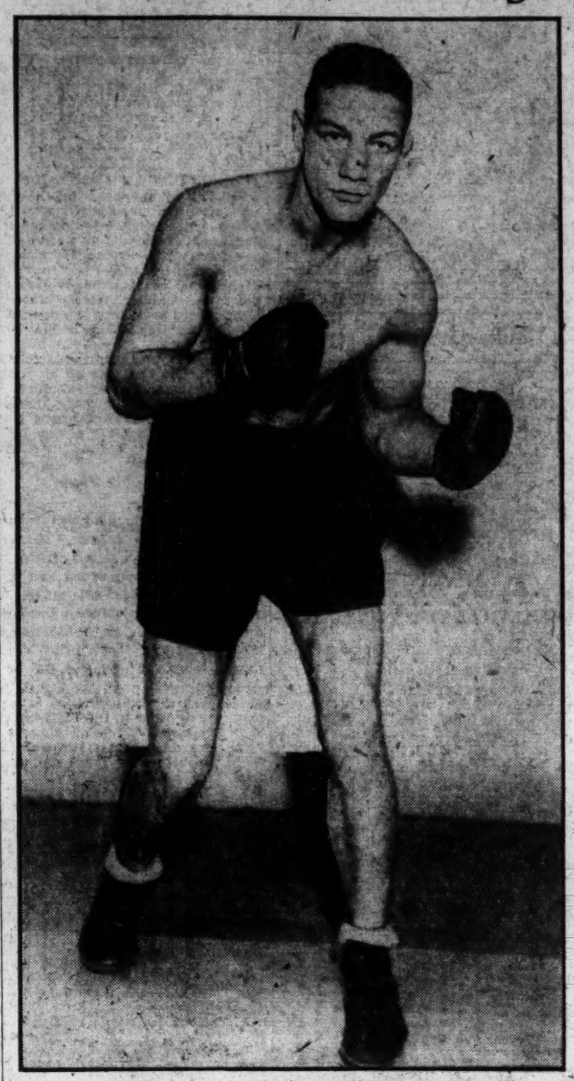
Rosenbloom Faces Godwin In Laurel Feature Tonight



MAXIE ROSENBLOOM, world's light heavyweight champion, who battles Bob Godwin tonight. This pair previously fought to a draw.

Light Heavy Champion Meets Youth at Twin City.

BIG league boxing will be offered Washington's fistic followers tonight when Matchmaker Charley Cornell features his blue ribbon presentation at Twin City Arena.

Headlining on a show scheduled to get under way at 8:30 o'clock will be a routed 10-round main event bringing together Maxie Rosenbloom, light heavyweight champion of the world, and young Bob Godwin, an outstanding contender.

Although the bout is nontitle there is little doubt but what those assembled will see Champion Rosenbloom thoroughly extended. Boxed to a draw by Godwin at Daytona Beach last winter, Rosenbloom tonight faces a heavier and much harder hitting lad than the one he battled to a standstill their last time out.

Semifinaling over the 8-round distance will be Fred Haverlak, junior welterweight sparring partner of Rosenbloom, and Arthur DeBeve, former lightweight champion of France. Despite his years of wear and tear DeBeve is still a sure-fire crowd pleaser.

Sammy Britt, Washington's latest middleweight standout, will endeavor to wipe out a previous defeat in the main preliminary of six. "K. O." Burns, durable Baltimorean, is his duelist.

Joe Raspi meets Jackie Simpson and Sammy Hogan scraps "Young" Raspi in curtain raising bours.

Tickets remain on sale at Vic's Sport Shop until 5 o'clock this afternoon, ladies being assessed full price. Buses departing on regular schedule leave the Annapolis Hotel, starting at 7 o'clock.

BOXING BITS SELECTIONS—Rosenbloom to beat Godwin; Haverlak to beat DeBeve; Britt to beat K. O. Burns; Simpson-Raspi, draw; Young Raspi to beat Hogan.

Allison, Van Ryn Defend Title Against Strong Field at Longwood.

Chestnut Hill, Mass., Aug. 21 (U.P.).—Tennis stars from France, England, Japan and the United States will start tomorrow a week's battle for the fifty-first annual national doubles championship on the courts at Longwood Cricket Club.

France, never a victor in the American doubles championship tournament, made a strong bid this year by sending Henri Cochet and Marcel Bernard, his 18-year-old partner, to try to wrest the title from Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Tex., and John Van Ryn, of Philadelphia, defending champions. The Frenchmen were seeded second among the foreign entrants.

The top-seeded English pair, Henry W. (Bunny) Austin and Fred J. Perry, are handicapped somewhat by lack of experience in playing together. Austin has never played doubles with Perry in England, but they have joined forces in several tournaments in this country.

Ellsworth Vines, of Pasadena, Calif., and Keith Gledhill, of Santa Barbara, Calif., are second-seeded Americans. Vines' victory over Cochet in the Davis Cup final has led to the hope that they meet in the doubles tournament.

Indian Spring Golf Teams Triumph

Hillendale Golfers Are Beaten 25 Points; Women Star.

68 by Shorey Equals Course Record at Manor Club.

By DAVE HERMAN.

INDIAN SPRING golfers routed two teams from Hillendale, of Baltimore, yesterday on the former's course, the men sweeping to a 42½ to 17½ triumph, and the women blanking their feminine opponents by 18 to 0.

In the feature match of the afternoon, George Diffenbaugh, fiery little pro from Indian Spring, teamed with Capt. Tom Belshe to defeat Carroll T. McMasters, Hillendale tutor, and Ernie Caldwell, ranking player, 2 points to 1, with a fair sized gallery accompanying the foursome.

Diffenbaugh flashed the best golf of the day over a course not unfamiliar to him. After stroking the first nine in 36, diminutive George played subpar golf on the homeward journey, to wind up with a 71, par for the beautiful Donald Ross links.

McMasters-Caldwell Lead at Turn.

The match was pretty tight for the first half, with the towering McMasters and Caldwell leading at the turn by 1 up. Mac and Ernie had a best ball of 33 on the first nine, with the Indian Spring pair posting a 34. Diffenbaugh's trusty putter held him in good stead coming in, when he used up only 12. On the fourteenth, after being in the trap on his second, George niblicked out into the cup for his par 3.

Three points were registered by local golf twosomes in ten of the matches, while the Indian Spring feminine experts, led by Mrs. Betty Meckley, who shot an 83, kept the visiting contingent from scoring a single tally.

A return match at Hillendale will take place September 18.

A. B. Thorn, Woodmont pro, and Archie Clark, assistant to Sandy Armour at Congressional, turned back Al Houghton, pro from Kenwood, and Walter Cunningham, Burning Tree instructor, yesterday at Kenwood in an 18-hole exhibition match, 1 up.

Houghton, who holds the course record for pros, set the scoring pace with a 75. Cunningham shot a 76, with Clark and Thorn bagging 77s, each.

Mel Shorey, East Potomac Park, equaled the Manor Club course record yesterday with a fine 68 while teaming with the home pro, Al Treador, to defeat Manor's two amateur aces, Harry G. Pitt, District titleholder, and Maurice Nee, 17-year-old youth, both of whom qualified last week for the national amateur golf tournament. They triumphed 3 and 2.

Shorey was in rare form as he hit his shots skillfully and with unerring accuracy. Treador, clicking off a 70, and Shorey, had a best ball of 63. Pitt went around in 73 and Nee in 76.

Col. C. G. Storm won the blind bogey tournament at Manor yesterday with an 88—13—75. W. W. Farnum, with a 91—20—71 and H. G. Wood, with a 77—6—71, tied for second. There was a triple deadlock for third place between T. N. Deavers, who had an 85—7—78, M. Myers, with 91—13, and W. A. Warcher, with 90—12.

Giants Pound Ball to Beat Dodgers

Three Robin Hurlers Yield 17 Hits in Bowing, 9 to 3.

Fitzsimmons, Given Early 6-0 Lead, Is Tight in Pinches.

BROOKLYN, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—The pennant-hungry Dodgers ran into nothing but trouble today as they returned home for a one-day stand against the New York Giants, their particular enemies and now their chief rivals for the role of the fastest traveling team in the National League.

The Giants hit just about everything three Brooklyn hurlers offered and pounded out a 9-to-3 victory. The Dodgers were set back a full game in their chase after the Chicago Cubs, who defeated the Phillies, but held their margin over Pittsburgh, which also lost.

Giants Stage 17-Hit Barrage.

The New Yorkers hammered out 17 hits, bunching a large part of them in the first three innings to take a 6-0 lead. Then old Jack Quinn, who followed Freddy Heimach and Joe Shaute to the hill, slowed down the Giant batters with the aid of some good support.

Heimach yielded one run in the first, Bill Terry sending it in with an infield out, and was sent to the showers in the second when Terry drove over two more runs with a double. Shaute was knocked out in the third, when doubles by Hogan and English figured prominently in a three-run rally.

Burly Fred Fitzsimmons didn't give the Dodgers a chance to stage any effective counter-rallies. He gave up two runs in the fifth, when successive singles by Wilson, Cuccinello and Slade followed a pass to Dan Taylor, and another in the ninth on Taylor's single, Joe Stripp's double and O'Doul's long fly.

Red Sox and Tigers Split Double-Headers

Boston, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Detroit and Boston split a double-header today, the Sox taking the opener, 3 to 1, and the Tigers the second, 4 to 2.

The pitching of Weiland was responsible in large measure for his team's victory, the Tigers making only four hits off his delivery. Vic Sorrell limited the Sox to seven bingles while Gehringer and Webb gave him worth while assistance at bat and in the field.

Record Field of 196 In West's Title Golf

Rockford, Ill., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—A record field of 196 shotmakers, headed by a quartet of former title holders and two Walker Cup team stars, open fire on the Western golf championship over the Illinois fairways of Rockford Country Club tomorrow.

Starting officials were swamped by a last minute stampede of entries tonight and the championship field assumed the complexion of the best and largest in thirty-two years of play.

Young Don Moe of Portland, Oreg., the defending titleholder, was confronted with a real job in defense of his crown, although he was on his game for the full week's test.

Helen Jacobs Easy Winner Of National Singles Crown

HELEN JACOBS,
Berkeley, Calif., girl, who won the national championship yesterday after five tries. Miss Jacobs is now 23.

Miss Babcock, Stage-Struck, Is Defeated 6-2 and 6-2.

By GAYLE TALBOT.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 21 (A. P.).—For seven or eight years Helen Jacobs has coveted the women's national tennis crown, and she won it easily today by defeating little Carolyn Babcock, of Los Angeles, 6—2, 6—2.

Carolyn, the sensation of earlier rounds, when she turned back such stars as Mrs. L. A. Harper and Joan Ridley on successive days, couldn't make it a contest against the sure-stroking girl from Berkeley, who completed her victorious way through the tournament with the loss of only one set.

Whether it was stage fright, or the fact she was against a player vastly superior to those she had previously met, Miss Babcock didn't look like the little wizard who had set the critics

ALLEN HURLS YANKS TO VICTORY

Browns Beaten, 3-1; Blaeholder Bows in Final Duel.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Young Johnny Allen had the better of George Blaeholder in an old-fashioned pitchers' battle today to record his twelfth victory against two defeats as the Yankees defeated the St. Louis Browns, 3 to 1.

Each team was held to three hits, with all the blows off Blaeholder's coming in the third inning to produce two tallies. Lou Gehrig turned the trick, hitting a single with the bases full, to bring home Combs and Sewell. Babe Ruth sent in another with a fly in the eighth. Brilliant fielding by Sewell and Lazzeri helped Allen.

COLUMBIA HEIGHTS NINE WINS FROM DIXIE PIGS, 9 TO 4

Spigel Hurls As Series Is Evened

Dixie Pigs Trounced, 9-4, in Capital City League Play-Off.

Spigel Scatters Hits to Hurl Columbia to Triumph.

CHARLEY EDWARDS, and his last minute-men from Columbia Heights, staged another of their eleventh-hour rallies yesterday to smear a 9-4 defeat on the record of the Dixie Pigs and prevent the latter from annexing the unlimited championship of The Post's Capital City League, at Byrd Stadium.

Entering the fray with one series victory over their rivals and needing only another win to clinch the championship, the Dixies were on the short end of what odds were being offered by the sporting gentry in attendance. The team's chances of victory were further enhanced by the presence of Lefty Jones and the Adair brothers, Adgie and "Blackie," all of whom were more than willing to do the pitching. As the game turned out, all of them had an opportunity of chucking 'em down the alley, but nothing short of a few detachments of Marines could have stopped Columbia Heights.

Spigel Is Tight In Pinches.

"Simon Legree" Spigel, Heights ace, again was ineffectively effective. He gave nine hits when the value of the bingles hovered in the vicinity of the "dime a dozen" mark. But when a hit would have meant a run, Spigel was tighter than a rookie cop.

Other members of the winning team also were annoying to the suburbanites. Dick Wingate, who leaped several feet in the air to spear Dove's liner in the first inning, and Dick Nelson, who numbered an unassisted double-play among his feats for the day, were leaders in this respect.

The Dixies led until the sixth inning, when the Columbians opened up with a barrage of hits that netted five runs. Jones scored for Hugh Waldrop's gang in the first after drawing a pass when Nelson overthrew first base in an attempt to retire Watt. The cash register was given another workout in the fourth frame, when Stahl and Joseph hit in order and Jones followed suit with a bingle to center. Fee Collier's triple scored Joseph in the sixth after the latter had singled, and the final tally came over in the eighth, when Stahl doubled and Radtke singled.

Melson and Frat Get Hits.

Hits by Nelson and Frat, sandwiched in with a sacrifice by Clark and wild throw by Jones, gave the Heightsmen their first run in the first inning. Not another Columbia runner crossed the pan until the seventh, when Jones was relieved by Ad Adair. Ad went to the slab with none out and Wiltshire and Spigel on base as guests of Jones. Stahl took Nelson's roller and retired Spigel at second. Clark was passed out and a moment later Fret joined him with Wiltshire being forced, very much against his will, to score. Wingate then put the finishing touches on the rally by socking a long double to center, giving the sacks a thorough cleaning.

Nelson and Clark singled in the eighth, and Frat tripled to start the ball rolling. Wingate came through with a clean single for the third and final run

The one redeeming feature of the Dixie Pigs' play was a diving catch by Joseph in the third inning.

The third and deciding game of the series will be played next Sunday at Boyd Stadium, Maryland University.

JOE AND ASBESTOS

(Watch Sunday's Post for New Secret Code) —By Ken Kling

Watch for big innovation this week when Joe starts betting daily. Accident to Polyphote, 6-to-1 shot Saturday, spoiled Asbestos' co. . Code horse again scratched. Today's code, Saratoga, 15-2-24-4-20-2-11-4-1 20. Bank roll is $34.41. Joe's bank roll is $283. His system horses today are long shots: Wise Advocate, Sporting Pearl, Jambalaya, Mr. Joe, William T., Jackstaff, Hopefield.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: HAWTHORNE RACE TRACK, CHICAGO, AUG. 20.

I think I have dug up the get-out special for tomorrow. Have done a little scouting over the week-end and now I'm ready to come out into the open and slip you CAPTAIN ED. He's meeting the kind who are bound to send his price skyward. I understand that every one concerned is enthusiastic over that No. 1 post position. The Captain, himself, will be rarin' to go and if he don't I'll have a lot of explaining to do.

Just to prove how cocky I feel, I'm going to try to make these win at Saratoga: Eisenberg, Sergt. Donaldson, Daisy Cutter. BILL.

FIRST RACE—Two-year-old maidens are asked to run six furlongs in the opener. Personally I'll take the field but, inasmuch as the boss demands the naming of three horses, here goes—BIANOZ, SPORTING PEARL, PETE.

SECOND RACE—It looks like the majority of play in this race will be centered around JAMABALAYA and INFINITY. I like them in that order SIBERIA for the show. My old friend CHOSEN PAL is last on the list and has little chance of getting in action. Dangerous if he goes.

THIRD RACE—CAPTAIN ED will have PREFER and WHIPPERCRACKER to beat. I have told you about the captain above.

FOURTH RACE—MR. JOE has done a lot of things I have asked him to do and I'm giving him another chance to make good for me. MELOY looks like the tough baby. ARROWSWIFT was well thought of but terrible in Maryland last spring but has since found speed.

FIFTH RACE—I'm stringing along with what appears to be the favorite here. It's SWEET SCENT, BROWN WISDOM and SWEEP ALL to make the top one step lively.

SIXTH RACE—WATCH TOWER is my choice here. Looks like they'll hop to WILLIAM T. today with the rent money. I may or may not be smart, but old William is off my list. He will have a job beating UNCOMMON GOLD for the place.

SEVENTH RACE—BEAUTY SECRET is my long shot special in this slumming race. PIECEMEAL and MEETING PLACE for the rest. BEAUTY SECRET is no Man O' War, I warn you. Across the board at track odds (if you can get them) is my advice.

EIGHTH RACE—ULTRAMARINE, LIMBUS, HATTERAS. That's my story and I'll stick to it.

Exhibitors Are Urged to List Entries Prior to Date of Closing, Sept. 1.

Plans have been completed for the nineteenth annual Fairfax Horse Show September 9 and 10. The program, which includes a number of innovations, has been arranged by Estler M. Palmer, president and manager; Robert D. Graham, secretary-treasurer; Ray H. Norton, assistant manager, and Stewart Preece, ring steward. The advisory committee includes A. Smith Bowman, Emery Galliher and R. T. Corbell.

Secretary Graham predicts entries this year will exceed those of previous showa. He urges exhibitors to send their entries prior to September 1, the closing date, so that all arrangements may be completed as soon as possible.

Five general classes are listed. Breeding classes include brood mares, best type suitable to produce hunters, yearlings suitable to become hunters, judged on conformation and soundness, and 2-year-olds, judged for suitability to become hunters.

Hunter Class Horses.

Hunters' class includes green hunters, 3-year-olds to jump not to exceed 3½ feet; 4-year-olds to jump not over 4 feet; lightweight hunters, carrying up to 165 pounds, over jumps not over 4 feet; middle and heavyweight hunters up to 185 pounds; hunter backs shown at walk, trot and canter over four 3½-foot jumps; kine joy class, presented each year by Ray Norton, for 3 and 4 year olds and Corinthian horses to be ridden in hunting colors.

Jumper classes include Fairfax hunt class, for members and residents of Fairfax County; horses to jump four jumps, touch and out, performance only to count; to jump four jumps at 4 feet. Post entries. Triple bar. Over two triple bars, twice around. Post entries. Time class, and handy hunters. Open to hunters and jumpers over course without jumps.

The saddle horse classes include novice saddle horses, saddle horses, open to all, and saddle horses, thoroughbred type. This will be followed by the hunter championship, to be awarded the horse winning the greatest number of points in this show, won in classes in which conformation counts.

The pony classes for children will be judged on September 10, with the first class to be called at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. Saddle ponies, for ponies 12.2 and under, to be ridden by children 12 years and under. Saddle ponies, for ponies over 12.2 and not over 14.2 to be ridden by children 16 years of age and under. Child's class, to be ridden by children 8 years old and under; ponies to be 12.2 and under. Touch and out, for ponies not over 14.2, best performance to win. Ponies 12.2 and under to jump 2½ feet. Pony jumpers, for ponies over 12.2 and not over 14.2. Family class, for two or more members of one family. Pony Corinthian, to be shown over outside course, for ponies not over 14.2, to be ridden by children 16 years and under in hunting costume. Pony hunt teams, for teams of three ponies. Model hunter ponies to be shown in hand. This will be followed by awarding the pony championship. To be awarded ponies to winning greatest number of points in this show.

Two Pony races.

Two pony races will be held during the day, the first for ponies 12.2 and under, about one-fourth of a mile, to be ridden by a child 12 years old and under, post entries, and for ponies over 12.2 and not over 14.2, about one-third of a mile, to be ridden by children 16 years of age and under.

It has been definitely decided that no county agricultural fair will be held in conjunction with the horse show this year. The fair association at its last meeting asked Fairfax County Agricultural Agent H. B. Derr if he would take charge of the agricultural section. Agent Derr consented to do this if he could secure the necessary cooperation of the farmers of the county.

Agent Derr said he wrote a number of letters to those usually interested in the county fair and other agricultural leaders of the county, asking them to assist him and only four persons answered his letters. He said he felt that with the limited amount of cooperation it would be impossible for him to neglect his other work to shoulder the entire responsibility in arranging an agricultural display.

2 Rockville Prisoners Flee By Way of Cooling System

One of Men Did Not Know He Was to Be Freed on Bond; Mattress Cover Used for Rope in Sliding to Landing.

The air-cooling system of Montgomery County's new jail at Rockville proved a perfect exit for two prisoners, it was discovered yesterday. The escape was made Saturday night, a few hours before one of the men, not knowing of the good fortune awaiting him, was to be released.

Washington police have been notified to be on the lookout in event the men were hiding in Washington.

Douglas Irvin, 28, of Birmingham, Ala., awaiting grand jury action on a warrant charging larceny of chinaware, and William Smith, 20, of no fixed address, awaiting action for larceny of auto accessories, were discovered missing yesterday morning by Joseph Moxley, turnkey. Irvin was to have been released yesterday on his personal bond.

The escape from the modern jail, situated on the top floor of the new Rockville courthouse, was made by way of a tunnel leading from the dormitory room to the roof, according to Montgomery County police. The room accommodates ten prisoners.

During the night the grating, opening in the shower niche, was removed. The men are alleged to have crawled through the 20-inch tunnel to the jail roof, getting out on the roof through the leaves of the huge ventilator fan. They are believed to have then crossed the runway to the roof of the old courthouse and entered the tower of the old building by breaking a window.

From the inside of the tower the men apparently slid to a landing in front of the police court by using a rope made from a mattress cover, finally escaping through the rear door.

Irvin was arrested five months ago on a warrant sworn to by Mrs. William Simms, of Gaithersburg, Md.

Smith was arrested several weeks ago in Silver Spring by Montgomery County and Takoma Park police after a chase of several miles. Automobile accessories said to have been stolen from a garage in Norbeck, Md., are alleged to have been found in the car.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

THE Masai boy, when he enters upon manhood as a warrior of the tribe at about 17 years, must forego all other foods, and live entirely on blood, milk and raw meat. From ten to thirteen years later he settles down as an elder, marries and again enjoys the privilege of eating whatever is available.

No member of the Masai tribe ever worries about dying of old age. Natural deaths are unknown, for when a tribesman appears to be dying from disease, or is too old to care for himself, he is taken outside the protected inclosure occupied by the tribe and left to be killed by wild animals.

All material matter, scientists tell us, could be divided into 92 elements—the number of elements known to exist. Although science has been able to determine how many elements there are, and has been successful in describing some of the once undiscovered elements, it was not until a few months ago that all had been isolated. Strange as it seems, element No. 85, which was named eka-iodine, was discovered last. Ancients believed earth, air, fire and water to be the only elements, but actually they are not elements.

DR. O'GRADY RAPS PITTMAN ON R.F.C.

Declares Bill Did Not Intend for Funds to Be Given Out Indiscriminately.

The Rev. Dr. John O'Grady, secretary of the National Conference of Catholic Charities, in a statement attacking Senator Key Pittman, of Nevada, for criticizing the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, yesterday said:

"Senator Pittman, of Nevada, recently issued a statement attacking the policies of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in the administration of unemployment relief. Senator Pittman apparently wants the Finance Corporation to dole out money indiscriminately to the States. This was the intent of the legislation he sponsored in the Senate. It was plainly not the intent of the bill finally approved. Federal relief was to be based on the resources and needs of the States. Governors were required to certify to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation that the tax resources of States and local communities and the funds secured from private sources were unequal to the needs. The law states very plainly that each application must be approved by the Finance Corporation. The officials of the corporation could not pass on applications without careful study. After such study they rejected the application of the Governor of Pennsylvania. The Legislature of that State, which had been playing politics with relief, in the hope of passing the burden to Washington, immediately adopted a $12,000,000 relief program, and thus demonstrated to the country that Pennsylvania was not yet bankrupt.

Declared Not Bankrupt.

"The State of Illinois is not bankrupt. It is faced with acute relief problems at present, in which it needs Federal assistance, but every person who understands the situation in the State knows that Illinois can do vastly more for unemployment relief. Can the Reconstruction Finance Corporation be criticized justly if, in carrying out the intent of the emergency relief and construction act, it insists that the State of Illinois use its own resources before appealing to the Federal Government? I think not.

"The Governor of Michigan made application for a large relief loan for the City of Detroit. The corporation finally granted a loan of $1,800,000, with the understanding that the State of Michigan assume its fair share of the relief responsibilities in its local communities. The Governor of Michigan does not seem to be aware that Detroit is a part of the State.

"Only six States have developed any State-wide programs for unemployment relief. They are: Rhode Island, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Wisconsin.

"Many cities and counties have reached the end of their relief resources; but the States have scarcely tapped their resources.

Local and State Responsibility.

"It is not popular for governors and legislatures to impose additional taxes upon their people. Relief, however, is basically a local and a State responsibility. Only after the resources of local communities and States are exhausted should recourse be had to the Federal Government. Easy Federal relief is the surest means of undermining local and State responsibility. Eventually, this would mean the end of private relief.

"In all probability, those who are advocating the disbursement of Federal funds to the States, without any question, do not realize the consequences of their program. They surely do not want to stifle local responsibility or private relief. All Americans are interested in the great Nation-wide campaign for the mobilization of local relief and welfare resources now under way. Our leaders want to do everything possible to promote this activity. Fair-minded persons generally concede that the relief program of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is fundamentally sound. It maintains a fair balance between local and national responsibility for the relief of distress."

'KHAKI SHIRTS' URGE 48 STATE AID CAMPS

Support of Governors Asked for Unemployed Scheme by War Veterans.

Appealing to governors of the 48 States for aid in "the gravest situation that has confronted the country in many decades," the Khaki Shirts of America, an organization sponsored by war veterans, yesterday urged the establishment of State camps to provide relief for "those 12,000,000 unemployed" and their families.

The support of the governors was asked in a letter sent to the capital city of each State. Immediate action was urged in providing State camps or cantonments, "where the homeless unemployed, with their families, may find shelter, fuel, food and the opportunity for legitimate earning during the coming winter."

The letter declared that "unless something helpful and humane is done to assist these unemployed before the rigors of winter close down upon them, serious disturbances will in all probability ensue."

The camps could be placed upon a partly self-supporting basis, the organization pointed out, and the cost of relief would be reduced through "elimination of the waste that inevitably occurs in individual relief work."

"You will perhaps be advised by some," the governors were told, "that such concentration of the unemployed is inadvisable and dangerous. Is it not better that they be gathered under the eyes of a helpful State than roaming unrestricted throughout the State with nothing to prevent them from concentrating where they will?"

House Is Fired And 2 Autos Lost in Blast

Efforts of a Washington man to avoid an automobile accident on the highway near Chester, Pa., yesterday, resulted in setting fire to a house and completely destroying two machines, one of which was his own, according to an Associated Press report last night.

Nathaniel Carter, of 2613 Sherman avenue northwest, told police he stopped his car suddenly to avoid a collision. Several members of his party, following in another machine, crashed head-on into the rear of the stalled car.

Carter was carrying a 15-gallon drum of gasoline attached to the back of his automobile. The tank exploded following the crash. Both cars were destroyed and the fire quickly spread to a nearby house. Firemen were unable to save the machines, but succeeded in extinguishing the blazing building before serious damage was done.

The party was headed for Asbury Park, N. J. Emmanuel Martin, driver of the other car, and Alice Carter, a passenger, were treated for slight burns at the Chester Hospital. C. J. Goodlow, who was riding with Carter, escaped injury. Carter leaped to safety from his flaming machine.

Potter was pinned beneath the tracks of the street car, severely lacerating the upper part of his legs.

The fire rescue squad was summoned and after an hour's work succeeded in extricating him by jacking up the car. He was taken to Emergency Hospital, and later transferred to Walter Reed. Here he was said to be suffering from a dislocated hip, injuries to the pelvis, and shock.

INDUSTRY INSURANCE PRICE BOOST SCORED

Building Trades Body Leader Raps Premium Increase as Unethical.

An increase in premiums on compensation insurance, announced recently by "certain insurance companies," was assailed yesterday in a statement issued by Charles J. Columbus, executive secretary of the Building Trades Employers Association of Washington.

Branding the increase as a "most unethical proceeding," Mr. Columbus charged that "those who enacted the compensation law for the District of Columbia were much at fault."

It was pointed out that the increase on premiums went into effect August 1 to the extent of 26.9 per cent in stock companies and 15.9 per cent in nonstock companies. Mr. Columbus attacked "such a seemingly abnormal figure in the face of declining prices in every other direction."

"This circumstance," the statement read, "if followed by other lines, would destroy all stabilization in business."

Few forms of business, Mr. Columbus pointed out, can stand such an increase of cost as is contemplated in these increases of such an important element of expenditures.

"I believe that it is decidedly an unethical and unbusinesslike practice to put such an increase into effect without completing the terms of existing contracts," Mr. Columbus declared.

"It is contended," the statement concluded, "that the blow delivered by the insurance companies will be softened by the fact that the stock companies will give a dividend of 12½ per cent on all premiums over the first $1,000. The plain truth of the matter is that, with some rare exceptions, Washington contractors will be denied any part of that dividend."

Catholic Doctrine Held No Mystery

Miss Mary Bowen Points to Use of Picture and Tangible Objects.

"The Catholic Church is the universal teacher," said Miss Mary Bowen yesterday in addressing an audience on the grounds of Catholic University, under auspices of the Catholic Evidence Guild.

"All teachers," she said, "know the value of concrete examples and images as a means of conveying understanding to the mind of the learner. Making use of this simple expedient, the Catholic Church has always used pictures, images—visible, tangible objects—to help in making doctrine something that can be understood and to assist the devotion of her children by helping them to see depicted before their eyes the mysteries of religion.

"Thus she has her crib during the Christmas season, so that the youngest child, as well as the most learned scholar may look upon a representation of the mystery of the incarnation, the beginning of the earthly life of the Son of God. And she has the stations of the cross, picturing the last sad hours of that life, and bringing to all beholders the memory of the heavy price paid for their redemption."

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

THE recent lamented death of Florenz Ziegfeld does not mean that the theatrical "institution" with which his name is most closely linked in the public mind will sink into oblivion. The "Follies" productions, according to latest word from New York, will be carried on and will retain the name of Ziegfeld as a trademark. A. C. Blumenthal, the wealthy real estate man and husband of Peggy Fears, who recently has been host to Mayor James J. Walker, of New York, during the hearings at Albany, will sponsor them.

The new "Follies" will be housed in the former Earl Carroll Theater—which must be a little hard for the Earl of Carroll to take—and the "Vanities" will occupy the old Hammerstein Theater.

Mr. Blumenthal was in charge of the Ziegfeld estate during the last illness of the "old master" and is managing the successfully revived "Show Boat," a greater triumph now than upon the occasion of its first presentation. While he has never been a theatrical producer himself, his wife has launched a pretentious program for the current season and will be remembered as the producer of "Child of Manhattan," which almost opened here last season—but didn't.

And speaking of such, with the opening of the National Theater announced for September 19, with the premiere of Schwab and De Sylva's new musical comedy, "Humpty Dumpty," featuring Lou Holtz, Ethel Merman, J. C. Nugent, June Knight and Sid Silvers, word comes from the management of the Rapley playhouse that two other big musicals will shortly follow. Earl Carroll's last season's "Vanities," featuring Will Mahoney, and Ed Wynn, in "The Laugh Parade," are scheduled for October—which strikes us as nothing to number among the causes of any grouch you may have in prospect!

Then, upon opening that envelope postmarked Wildwood, N. J., and addressed in the strange handwriting, one learns from Master George E. Leavitt, the genial cymbal-whanger for the Chesterfieldian Mr. Jimmie Lake's Gayety Theater, that the Ninth street citadel of burlesque will reopen for the season in a fortnight, with the "Girls from Dixie" as the initial attraction. To be specific about it, the Gayety will get away to a flying start with a matinee performance on Saturday, September 3. The house slogan for the new season will be, "We pay the tax," which, I understand, is to be literally true. Upon all admissions over 40 cents, the house will absorb the Government nuisance tax, instead of adding it to the price of the ticket and passing it along to the cash customer—a very handsome idea, indeed.

I know of only one other amusement enterprise in or around Washington that has voluntarily shouldered the burden of Uncle Sam's annoying admission assessment and that is Glen Echo Park, under the discerning management of Leonard B. Schloss.

It was with difficulty that City Manager Carter Barron, Publicity Director Eddy Gilmore and the other Loew executives in the Capital were restrained from bursting into a series of merry roundelays and doing a maypole dance in the middle of F street this past week-end. The Friday box-office receipts o Loew's Fox, Palace and Columbia Theaters were the reason. Each house scored the biggest Friday it has had since the Loew interests took over the Fox and thereby considerably altered the amusement topography of F street early last spring. The boys were wearing smiles broader than some of Marty May's jokes!

By the way, when Wesley Eddy opens at Shea's Buffalo Theater, in Buffalo, N. Y., on September 9, he will be out from under Loew management for the first time in five years.

Nick Lucas, since you ask, is playing his fourth engagement at the Earle Theater this week—and is four times as popular as he was when he played his first!

Only 27 more days to September 19—and they're getting shorter right along!

INFIDELS HELD ABLE TO BE GOOD CITIZENS

However, Loyal Patriotism Is Called Important to True Christianity.

"While one may be a good citizen without being a Christian, it does not follow that one can be a Christian without being a good citizen," declared the Rev. Thomas E. Boorde, pastor of the Temple Baptist Church, preaching at a special service held yesterday afternoon at Temple Heights.

The topic of the sermon was "The Law." The text was taken from the fortieth verse of the twenty-second chapter of the Book of Matthew: "On these two commandments hang all the law." The Rev. Mr. Boorde, chaplain of National Lodge, No. 12, F. A. A. M., said in part:

"The best citizen is one who loves God as well as honors the king. The Christian citizens, especially where the law of the land does not transgress the law of God, will endeavor to even more than observe the law. Their lives will be governed by the principles of justice, mercy and truth. The Christian citizen will live a life not so much with regard to the commission of crime, but with a desire not to commit sin. This manner of living will prevent crime. The prevention of crime will produce peace, happiness and prosperity, in home, State and country.

Statement by Solomon.

"One who observes the law of his country is a good citizen. The laws may or may not be good, but he who observes the law of his land is a good citizen, nevertheless. Civil law may encourage and sustain all that is humane, but it lacks the power to exert itself. Administration rests with the powers that be.

"Every act of lawlessness, individual or collective (and collective lawlessness rests mostly upon the individual), adultery, murders, drunkenness, robbing of widows and orphans, withholding the necessities of life thereby inviting the curse of the people, keeping back 'the hire of the laborers,' failing to feed the poor, clothe the naked, minister to the sick, strikes and lockouts, kidnaping and racketeering arises from that lust which causes a forgetfulness of the statement by Solomon: 'Moreover the profit of the earth is for all.'

"Yes, one may be a good citizen without being a Christian or an advocate of any particular religion. One's idea or ideal of patriotism may be his religion.

Basis of Civil Law.

"The law as declared by Moses was not merely for consideration, choice or experiment. It must either be accepted with its rewards, or rejected incurring its penalties. With one's relationship to God, no man or group of men can legislate. The recognition and exercise of this truth gave birth to that distinctive principle of democracy, absolute religious freedom. The legitimate basis of civil law is the greatest good to the greatest number, not upon any religious ground. These first commandments can be embraced in the first part of our Savior's answer, 'Thou shalt love the Lord thy God.'

"Beginning with the sixth commandment there is expressed man's relationship to his fellow man. It is concerning these relationships that man may and does legislate. The violation of laws enacted by man constitutes a crime and is punishable by man. A wise interpreter of law said, 'All human law is a copy, more or less imperfect, of divine law, and must of necessity continue to change until it coincides with divine law.'

"When the law of man coincides with divine law, and that law is then violated, there has been something more than a crime committed. Sin has been committed. Lust is sin. Lust fulfilled is crime. God alone deals with the one, man through legislation attempts to deal with the other, and may be the instrument by which God deals in part."

CLERIC URGES WORK, LOVE AND SACRIFICE

Rev. E. H. Lalone Preaches at Union Service at Universalist Memorial.

Work, love and sacrifice form the basis for the secret and satisfaction of the Christian religion, the Rev. Emerson Hugh Lalone declared at a union service yesterday at the Universalist National Memorial Church at the Mount Pleasant Congregational, All Souls Unitarian and the Universalist Churches.

"Subscribing to a creed is merely touching the circumference of one's religion," Dr. Lalone said. "Working with and for one's fellow men in the spirit of love, which is disinterested good will based on respect for human personality as such this is going to the heart of religion.

"If a man or woman can do this in business or social relations and all the while bear his cross of suffering or trials without rancor or sentimental self-pity, then he discovers the secret of Jesus' religion and abundant satisfying life is his.

"In the material fields of life we have long since recognized the necessity of persistent work and sacrifice to achieve satisfactory results. In the spiritual realm we still labor under the delusions that 'the comforts of religion' are things subject to no rational laws which by mysterious magic come to us merely by sentimental wishing for them."

SLUMP IN RELIGION HELD GREATEST ILL

Church of Advent Speaker Says Return to God Is Most Important.

"Today our greatest ill in America is not the financial depression, but the spiritual depression," said the Rev. Lawton Riley, of the Diocese of Atlanta, preaching yesterday morning at the Church of the Advent.

"How may we hope for the return of material prosperity until we return to God?" Mr. Riley asked.

"The Greatest Thing in the World," was the topic of the sermon. The speaker said, in part:

"The gospel of Christ in this hour of financial depression challenges the people of America with a power that strikes deep into the heart of every problem and points the way to true happiness and to real prosperity as nothing else can do.

"After all the centuries of majestic progress, the church of God still bears aloft the cross of Christ, and it towers over the wrecks of time in all its grandeur, proclaiming the greatest thing the hearts and minds of men and women ever knew. After the struggles of the centuries, the Christian faith still remains the strongest power in the world, and in its strength alone men and women find the meaning of life in its surpassing fullness.

Opportunity Held Wonderful.

"The opportunity of the church today is wonderful. But we who seek to labor within the church must work wisely, and there must be no sham, there must be no cowardice. There is a real work for us to do. There must be the militant spirit. There must be the strong heart and the high endeavor. There are too many dead pulpits and too many churches with the atmosphere of the cold storage plant. This gospel of ours that we are commanded to preach to the world is a burning thing.

"In too many of our churches we sing 'The Son of God Goes Forth to War' without realizing the glory of the words. In too many of our churches we sing 'Onward, Christian Soldiers,' and at the same time have no knowledge of a burning desire to go forth to the battlefield to meet the flesh and the devil. 'Just as this 'Greatest Thing In the World' is a live, dynamic thing, so must we, as the ambassadors of Christ, live the full, strong and mighty lives of Christians, and in our lives we must preach Christ crucified with all our power.

70,000,000 Outside Church.

"In America today there are more than 70,000,000 souls whose names are not written upon the books of any Christian church, who need to hear the words of the great message. What has become of the evangelical note in hundreds of our churches throughout the land? That note is never sounded, and the people in the pews have no realization of the truth that all men are called to be evangelists for God. Jesus Christ came into the world to seek and to save the lost, and only in carrying on that tremendous task can churches have the approval and the blessing of the Son of God.

"We must work with optimism in the church. We must lift up our hearts unto the Lord and go into his courts with praise and with thanksgiving and with everlasting joy. The signs of the times all point to a great spiritual awakening in this country—a mighty revival of religion. May that revival come soon. May it shake the land from coast to coast. May it cause millions in this America of ours to return to God. May it witness the return of religion to the hearthstone. May it take Christianity into business and into social life. May it cause the light of Christ's everlasting gospel—the greatest thing in the world—to shine in every home so that all men may glorify in their lives the eternal Father in Heaven."
